Grim Reaper, not state, sets Stan Swamy free at 84

Jesuit priest had just about recovered from Covid but suffered cardiac arrest on Saturday

MUKESH RANJAN AND SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Ranchi/Mumbai

JESUIT priest and tribal rights activist Father Stan Swamy, arrested in connection with the Elgar Parishad case, passed away at a Mumbai hospital on Monday shortly before the Bombay High Court took up his plea for bail. He was 84.

Swamy had been languishing in Mumbai's Taloja Jail ever since the National Investigation Agency (NIA) arrested him under the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA) on October 8 last year. The High Court had on May 28 told state prison authorities to shift him to the private Holy Family Hospital in Bandra.

■ 5 July 2021

On July 3, the HC slated his bail plea for hearing on July 6. However, his lawyers moved the court on Monday seeking urgent hearing after his health deteriorated and he was put on ventilator.

Earlier on March 23, special judge D E Kothalikar had refused bail even on health grounds saying the "collective interest of the community would outweigh Swamy's right to personal liberty" given the seriousness of the allegations made against Swamy. "As such the old age and or alleged sickness of the applicant would not go in his favour," he said.

Prima facie Swamy had hatched a "serious conspiracy" with members of a banned Maoist outfit to create unrest and to overthrow the government, the court had ruled, while refusing bail.

On Monday, when a bench comprising justices S S Shinde and N J Jamadar took up the bail plea around 2.30 pm, counsel Mihir Desai urged the court to hear Dr Ian D'souza, director of the Holy Family Hospital. He broke the news of Swamy's demise at 1.24 pm. Swamy had suffered cardiac arrest on Saturday and count not be revived, the doctor said, adding, "Cause of death is definitely pulmonary infection and Parkinson's disease among others." A shocked bench said, "With all humility at our command, we are sorry to know that Stan Swamy passed away. We have no words to express." P7, 10

CBSE announces new pattern of X, XII boards

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE CBSE has decided to rationalise the syllabi of classes X and XII for the 2021 batch and hold boards over two terms, with each covering 50% of the syllabi. The syllabi for the session 2021-22 would be divided into two terms based on a systematic approach, with subject experts looking into the interconnectivity of topics.

In a circular to all the heads of schools affiliated to it, the board said it would hold the Term I exam within a flexible 4-8 week window between November and December. The Term I paper would be multiple choice question-based. However, it has kept its options open on holding the exam either from centres or homes based on future situations.

For Term II, proposed between March and April, the board is mulling a 2-hour paper in different formats like case or situation-based, open ended short or long answer type. If the situation is not conducive, it might go for a 90-minute MCQ-based exam.

FOUR SCENARIOS

- If students are able to come to centres: The board will conduct Term I and Term II exams at centres and the theory marks will be distributed equally
- If schools are closed during Nov-Dec, but Term II exams are held at centres: Term I MCQ based examination will be conducted from home, but its weightage for the final score would be reduced, and weightage of Term II will be increased
- If schools are closed during March-April 2022, but Term I exams are held at schools: Results will be based on the performance of students on Term I MCQ based exam and internal assessment. The weightage of marks of Term I exam conducted by the board will be increased to provide year-end results of candidates
- If schools are closed during both the terms: Results will be computed based on internals, practical, project work and theory marks of both terms from home

Stalin can say no, but we will build Mekedatu project: CM

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

A day after Tamil Nadu Chief Minister MK Stalin urged his Karnataka counterpart BS Yediyurappa not to pursue the Mekedatu reservoir project, the Karnataka government on Monday reiterated that it will go ahead with it.

The State Government will take administrative and legal measures and Mekedatu project work will start, read a statement by the Chief Minister's Office on Monday. The Water Resources portfolio is held by Yediyurappa.

Tamil Nadu has filed a petition (Miscellaneous Application) in 2018, but there are no hurdles to implement the project, the CMO stated. As the new government has been formed in Tamil Nadu, a letter explaining the advantages of the project was written. But without understanding the project properly, Tamil Nadu is opposing it for political reasons, the CMO stated. Stalin had asked Karnataka not to go ahead with the project while responding to Yediyurappa's letter asking the TN government not to oppose the project. P7

People still being booked under old online laws, says SC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court on Monday issued notice to the Centre, expressing shock over continued booking of cases under Section 66A of the IT Act that had been struck down way back in 2015.

The section was meant to punish those sending online communication deemed "grossly offensive and menacing." The SC had annulled the provision, calling it "vague and arbitrary".

The notice came on a petition filed by an NGO, the People's Union for Civil Liberties, highlighting that 745 cases under Section 66A are still pending before various trial courts, six years after the SC struck it down in its verdict in the Shreya Singhal vs Union of India case. As per the plea, 1,307 cases have been filed under the section, since the 2015 judgment.

45:45:10 formula for PU II students, HC told

State government decides to pass all repeaters, pvt candidates; court says exam must be conducted by Aug 31

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE State Government on Monday placed a 45:45:10 formula to evaluate Second PU students and placed it before the Karnataka High Court on Monday.

As per the formula, 45 per cent for SSLC/equivalent exam marks, 45 per cent for first PU marks and 10 per cent for Second PU internal assessment marks will be considered to assess 5,92,816 regular students or freshers.

Accepting the formula, a division bench of Justices BV Nagarathna and Hanchate Sanjeevkumar directed the government to declare the results before July 31, 2021.

The government informed the high court that it has decided to pass all the repeaters, including private candidates who had failed the last year's Second PU exams. There are 76,387 repeaters and they have been classified into three categories — those who wish to improve their previous results, those who appeared as regular/fresher candidates, but did not score minimum passing marks in one or more subjects and those who appeared in the previous Second PU exams, but did not obtain minimum passing marks in one or more subjects.

Those repeaters who are not satisfied with their earlier marks can appear for the Second PU examination to be conducted once the pandemic situation eases. Others will be promoted with minimum passing marks along with 5 per cent grace marks.

If private students have already appeared for Second PU exam and failed in one or more subjects, they will be promoted with minimum passing marks along with 5 per cent grace marks.

But private candidates — 17,477 such students — who have directly enrolled for the PU II exam will have to appear for an exam to be conducted by the PU Education Department. This is because there is no data to take into consideration for the promotion of such students. The HC said the exam should be conducted by August 31 and results declared by September 20, 2021 to allow such students to catch up.

While the state claims it has catered to lakhs of students who were earlier in private schools, there is no evidence of infrastructure being built or teachers being recruited

School admissions touch only 50%, final data by July 10

PEARL MARIA D'SOUZA @ Bengaluru

KARNATAKA has seen just half the total number of students being admitted in state board schools, across managements -- government, aided, unaided and others. Admissions touched just 50.37 per cent of the target of 1,05,51,951 students, according to Department of Public Instruction (DPI) statistics.

DPI Commissioner Anbu Kumar told TNIE that by July 10, complete updation of data is expected. The state is estimated to have about 30,000 out-of-school children, and one can gauge how many have come back to school and the reasons they have stayed out. Schools have been asked to feed the admission data in the portal, so that headteachers are aware of students dropping out of school.

He said a video conference was held on Monday with all stakeholders, to ensure the data is fed at the earliest, although the deadline was June 30.

General secretary of Associated Managements of Primary and Secondary Schools in Karnataka Shashi Kumar told TNIE that admission numbers by the department were inflated. Students were being approached by the department to get admitted to government schools, if they hadn't enrolled in private schools, and this leads to ghost admissions as students would have their data in one school, and without issue of TC, would be admitted to a second (government) school.

Efficacy of PUC grading system remains a worry

PEARL MARIA D'SOUZA @ Bengaluru

WHILE some students have welcomed the government's formula of 45 per cent weightage for SSLC and first PUC marks, along with 10 per cent for internal assessments, they are worried about the objectivity of the internal assessments part. Students told TNIE that their college had not held any sort of internal assessment in paper.

Even the department officials have been privy to this. Hence, for the 10 per cent weightage, the department has asked for subject-wise evaluation of students based on online, offline, mid-dterm, preparatory, class test, assignment, character, overall educational capacity.

Meanwhile, another worry for students is those who shifted from other boards to PUC (state) board for their Class 12. These students had far more subjects in their Class 10 examination.

As per the department's marking scheme, two languages based on which they secured the highest in, will be chosen, and an average of the optionals will be taken, and the two will be converted to be marked out of 45.

"Some of the corporate schools gave poor grades in PUC I on purpose, so that study harder for PUC II. Some of my friends have faced this, as the focus was more on second PUC and competitive exams such as NEET and JEE," said Sonali (name changed) a PCMB student.

Meanwhile, an official said this year there will be no marking for individual subjects, just languages will be grouped as one, and electives as another, and marks will be averaged in different years and justified to be graded out of 45 marks each.

BU students oppose writing two sem exams in one month

Benglauru: Students of Bangalore University have asked officials to reconsider the decision to hold examinations of two semesters in one month. They demanded only one exam to be held. They sought two doses of vaccination before offline classes and examinations are held. Students said they were put under unwanted stress just after they complete their fourth semester classes and are expected to prepare for third semester examinations. This leaves little time to prepare for the fourth semester. ENS

I have convened meetings with SPs and deputy commissioners. I have spoken to ministers and MLAs for the smooth conduct of the examinations

Suresh Kumar, Education Minister

Will talk to SSLC students, allay fears: Suresh Kumar

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mysuru

AMID confusion and concern about the truncated format of SSLC examination, Education Minister S Suresh Kumar said he will interact with students directly to understand their problems and allay their fears.

The minister added that two sets of model question papers, which have been switched to multiple choice questions have reached all schools in the state.

"I have convened meetings with deputy commissioners and SPs of various districts and have spoken to many ministers and MLAs for the smooth conduct of the examinations. I will soon be conducting meetings with DDPIs and BEOs. It is the duty of the government to conduct this exam. It will help students understand their strengths," he said.

The minister said that with this situation, this time, 8,26,000 students are attending the exam.

Earlier in Mandya, officials said that according to the department, invigilators will be allowed to use only keypad handsets for official communications during the examinations and they also noted that instructions have been given to map children of migrant families appearing for SSLC exams to their nearest centres.

BIODIVERSITY BOARD SUGGESTS RELOOK AT LAKE PROJECT

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE minor irrigation department should take a relook at the Singanayakanahalli lake project and look at alternative routes, said Ananth Hegde Ashisara, chairman of Karnataka Biodiversity Board.

He said though the lake does not fall under BBMP limits, it was discussed as a resolution at the biodiversity board meeting with BBMP and experts. It was also said that the minor irrigation department should take a relook at the proposal it has made and not axe down 6,316 trees as proposed.

Speaking on the sidelines of a meeting on Monday, Ashisara told The New Indian Express that it was directed to BBMP to create a biodiversity register not just of the city, but of every ward. Focus should be given to lakes and wetlands conservation. It was also highlighted that minimal usage of concrete should be done while rejuvenating water bodies.

Forest department, biodiversity board and BBMP should coordinate and hold meetings pertaining to all forest related issues, along with local interaction. Success stories in conservation and lake conservation management should be incorporated. Ashisara said that a participatory approach is required for the improvement of biodiversity.

He added that last year also a meeting on biodiversity register was held and it was the first meeting. That time it was told to identify unique places and natural patches, document and protect them. Now, the same things were repeated to the BBMP, he said and added that in another two to three months reports will be prepared and made ready on biodiversity management.

Ashisara said there is also a need to identify heritage trees and places. Suggestions and inputs of experts and citizens should be taken.

Daily Starscope

PETER VIDAL

06th July: You may have heard the scientific news that the universe is now flat. And you might have wondered what on earth that meant, seeing as it's quite clearly not the case. Actually 'flat' is shorthand for saying that if you set off in a straight line you'll keep going instead of ending up where you started. Still confused? So am I!

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
You may soon come to the conclusion that some of your plans are a trifle unrealistic, but quite honestly you must ask yourself whether it matters. The answer is probably 'no'. In fact, by striving for aims beyond your capacity, you will define your limits with excellent consequences for the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
You may soon reach a point of no return at work. May I offer a word of advice to all ambitious Taureans? Like a good general you must only fight battles you know you can win. There is no point at all in creating a confrontation and then blowing it.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
You have been through some dodgy periods recently, yet somewhere along the line you will begin to appreciate that your real blessings in life are much more beneficial and lasting than unlimited fortune and adulation from others. Your real values are spiritual.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
Passions run high, today. Yet, there is no reason why you should not turn tough planetary energies to your advantage. Even excitable friends may have some good sense lurking behind their crazy behaviour. Avoid financial speculation, though, for your judgment may be just a little faulty.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
Some friends, partners and close associates still appear to be out of sorts, although if I might venture an opinion, it does seem that these people are singularly failing to make the most of their potential. Perhaps you can help. You see, you might know something they don't.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
You're quite a worrier, but try taking a deep breath and counting to ten whenever your security is threatened. Granted, your stars are signifying an outbreak of intrigue, mystery and possibly an element of confusion. In other words, try to hang on to the facts.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
You are more than usually aware who you may trust and who must be kept in their place. Don't let people influence your judgment over public or professional matters unless they are fully familiar with all the circumstances. You need advice. That's true. But only from people who know what they're talking about.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
A shake-up or showdown is about to take place, mainly because Mars is setting up a great deal of friction. However, it will no doubt be a good move to clear the air, allowing everyone to get complaints off their chests. There could even be resentments which date back several years.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
You'll wipe the slate clean now and put domestic irritations to one side. You are entering a phase which may include a few downs, but is generally likely to be much more enjoyable than usual. You must try not to be so reserved, for if you keep yourself to yourself, partners will fail to grasp the point.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
If you could ever find the balance between your personal interests and those of your friends and associates, you'd be a happy person. At least you should now be able to achieve a better balance with lovers, spouses and anyone with whom you're intimately involved.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
A celestial adventure is beginning, though you may require something of a kick-start to push you into action. Keep an eagle eye open for opportunities at work. For some reason, certain people in authority seem to be in a singularly inspired mood. A social invitation may offer more than seems likely at first sight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
Today's planetary alignment brings out a side of your character that is deep, intense and brooding. Please do channel your energies in a positive direction and be aware of the importance of your spiritual values. Give the highest priority to the truth.

Sumalatha on HDK jibe: Shows his culture

Former CM had spoken about how the Mandya MP could protect KRS dam

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

FORMER Chief Minister H D Kumaraswamy made a personal attack against Mandya MP Sumalatha Ambareesh, in connection with the Cauvery water issue, which elicited a sharp reaction from actor-turned-MP Sumalatha, who said it shows his "culture and personality".

Citing Sumalatha's recent statement expressing concern about the safety of KRS dam at a recent meeting, Kumaraswamy had said, "The MP has spoken as though she will protect the dam. Probably if she is made to 'sleep' at the doors of KRS, everything will be tightened and water won't leak."

Claiming that Sumalatha got elected on the basis of public sympathy, Kumaraswamy said, "Such opportunities do not come often; the chance she got because of sympathy, should be utilised properly by working for the people or they will teach her a lesson".

Sumalatha added, "Parliament election results in Mandya have proved whom the people wanted to teach a lesson. Leave aside that I'm an MP, making personal attacks against a woman -- what kind of culture is this? You were a former CM, don't you have control over your language?"

Earlier, Kumaraswamy met Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa on Monday on issues concerning MySugar factory and alleged that Sumalatha was pushing for handing MySugar to private hands. Sumalatha rejected these allegations too, and said she was was not pushing for handing over MySugar factory to private parties. The MP said she had only requested the Chief Minister to open the factory following an appeal by farmers.

Noting that illegal mining was happening near KRS dam and it may cause damage to it, Sumalatha said she has not personally accused anybody behind it and, following her initiative, action was taken and a fine was imposed against those who indulged in such activities.

> Parliament election results in Mandya have proved whom the people wanted to teach a lesson
>
> Sumalatha, MP

It is a known fact that Kumaraswamy and Sumalatha share a bitter relationship, especially after Kumaraswamy's son Nikhil was defeated in Mandya by Sumalatha Ambareesh by over a margin of 1.25 lakh votes, in spite of JDS being in power in the state and having JDS MLAs in all constituencies in Mandya.

Yatnal ups ante, visits Mysuru mutts

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru/ Mysuru

DISSIDENT BJP MLA Basanagouda Yatnal, on a visit to Mysuru on Monday, accused Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa of "looting the state" and said he should be removed, and that it would be done before August 15.

Meanwhile, political circles were abuzz with Vijayapura MLA Yatnal holding a hush-hush meeting with BJP MLC Adagur Vishwanath, at a private hotel in Mysuru. Yatnal issued statements against Yediyurappa and his son B Y Vijayendra, accusing them of looting Rs 100 crore through corrupt means.

He visited the temple atop Chamundi Hills, and later Srikanteshwara Temple and Devanoor Mutt, which is well known for feeding the poor. He also visited Hosamutt, a well-known local mutt, but significantly, did not visit Suttur Mutt, which is a must on the itinerary of dozens of politicians, including the high and mighty.

In the past three weeks, Yatnal, a Lingayat, has kept clear of Suttur Mutt, a Lingayat mutt, sending out a signal that there are differences in the Lingayat power hierarchy. It may be recalled that another dissident minister, CP Yogeeshwara, visited Suttur Mutt recently, and so did former minister Ramesh Jarkiholi, who resigned from the cabinet.

It may be recalled after his visit to New Delhi about two weeks ago, Yogeeshwara returned and met Yatnal in Vijayapura at a private hotel, and later visited Jaha Mrityunjaya Swami, who is close to Yatnal, and has also made several statements against Yediyurappa.

Defying BJP General Secretary and Karnataka in-charge Arun Singh's order to legislators and leaders not to speak of leadership change, Yatnal and other rebels have stepped up their campaign to remove Yediyurappa from the CM's chair. Having lain low for a few days after Singh's return to Delhi, they resumed their campaign, and Yatnal's accusations against Yediyurappa and Vijayendra are an embarrassment to both the party high command and chief minister.

He is reaching out to these mutts and appealing to them not to stand behind Yediyurappa, and accusing him of betraying the Lingayat community. On Monday, he paid a visit to Hosamutt in the city and accused Yediyurappa of letting down Kurubas, Nayakas and others.

Ensure quota for Panchamasalis or face protest, warns seer

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mysuru

THE Panchamasali Lingayats, who had called off their agitation after an assurance from Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa that their demands would be met adequately, are now warning Yediyurappa that they would launch a mass agitation if their demand to include the community in 2A reservation is not met before the deadline.

Sri Basava Jaya Mruthyunjaya Swami, Kudalasangama Panchamasali Peeta seer, who was in the city to hold a meeting and interact with religious and community leaders in the region, reminded the chief minister about his promise on including the community in the state and central OBC list, by getting them 2A reservation. "Yediyurappa must work as per his promise and implement it. Otherwise, the agitation is inevitable and we shall hold a stir and gather more than 20 lakh people on Palace Grounds in Bengaluru. By showing negligence to our stir, the BJP lost seats in the bypoll, hope it won't commit the same mistake again," the seer said.

Nalapad to take over as PYC prez next Jan

ENS @ Bengaluru

TO end confusion over the Pradesh Youth Congress (PYC) president's post, the Indian Youth Congress has decided to appoint Mohammed Nalapad as president from January 31, 2022.

IYC President BV Srinivas on Monday said Raksha Ramaiah, who was announced as PYC president in January this year, will continue in the post till January 31, 2022. Raksha will be later drafted into the IYC, Srivinas said.

The Congress landed itself in a mess over the Youth Congress elections, exposing factionalism within the party and creating confusion among leaders. Raksha Ramaiah, son of former minister MR Seetharam, who polled 57,271 votes, was declared PYC president by the election body, and Mohammed Nalapad, who got 64,203 votes, was disqualified, citing pending cases against him.

Sources in the Congress said the decision to appoint Nalapad as PYC president was taken after Srinivas recently met party leadersDK Shivakumar and Siddaramaiah to find a way to end the confusion.

Parties fume as no seat for SCs in Shivamogga TP, ZP poll

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Shivamogga

BJP and Congress leaders are upset over the reservation announced for 35 Zilla Panchayat seats and seven Taluk Panchayats in the district, by the Election Commission.

Aspiring candidates of the BJP are approaching their MLAs and MP, to express discontent over the reservation for the ZP-TP constituencies. The issue was first raised by the district Congress Committee SC wing president G Pallavi, who said that not one of the seven ZP constituencies was reserved for SC, in the reserved Shivamogga Rural assembly constituency. A request is being submitted to the Election Commission through the DC's office.

Leader of SC/ST Federation Veerabhadrappa Poojar said reservation for SC/ ST has to be higher in local body elections. Both SCs and STs were socio-politically deprived, and require more reservation. Another leader of the SC/ST Federation Bhoja Naik said they will approach court to demand scientific reservation of seats.

Many district and taluk BJP leaders have termed this reservation of seats as "unscientific". A senior BJP leader said the Election Commission should have taken the district election office into confidence before announcing the reservation.

According to sources, Santhosh, son of MLC Ayanur Manjunath, Harikrishna, son of former MLC MB Bhanuprakash, wife of former MLA and Congress spokesperson Beluru Gopalakrishna, Dr Rajanandini Kagodu, daughter of senior Congress leader Kagodu Thimmappa and many former taluk panchayat leaders are aspiring to contest the seats.

Several second-rung leaders are also keen to contest, for which they have already started lobbying with influential leaders within their parties.

Pvt hosps wait for state nod to get vaccine stocks

Govt had planned an online training session on CoWIN registration

IFFATH FATHIMA @ Bengaluru

AFTER the Union Government recently announced that private hospitals should place orders on the government's CoWIN portal for vaccine supply, the Private Hospitals and Nursing Association (PHANA) says they are still waiting for the State Government's nod to start with the process.

After the Centre's announcement, the State Government had asked private hospitals to register on the Karnataka Private Medical Establishments (KPME) portal. Later, the hospitals were again asked to register on the CoWIN portal, but many did not get their vaccine stocks after placing orders. Following this, officials from National Health Mission (NHM) Karnataka, had asked PHANA to wait until they conduct an online training on how to go about the process. Surprisingly, the training hasn't been carried out so far, and many hospitals are still waiting to get the vaccine stocks to take up inoculation.

Prasanna H M, president of PHANA, said, "We have been told that an online training session will be conducted, but we haven't been told when and how to register and also book slots for the vaccines. Most of the hospitals are waiting. We have no idea if this will be feasible."

Under the new process, private hospitals will have a slot on the CoWIN portal to register as a private Covid-19 vaccination centre. The approval will be given on the app and payment should be made online, after which order will be processed.

Dr Jagadish Hiremath, Medical Director of Ace Suhas Multispecialty Hospital, said, "We have not received any updates as of now. We registered on the CoWIN app two weeks ago. But till date, we have not received any mails or any kind of response regarding when we can procure vaccines. Unless we get the vaccine stocks, there is little we can do."

Most of the private mid-sized hospitals pointed out that the earlier procedure of the state procuring vaccines and giving it to the hospitals was easier. However, after the rules changed in April-end, asking hospitals to directly procure from manufacturers, many mid-sized hospitals started to face problems as they could not procure the doses while the bigger corporate hospitals were getting the vaccines.

Now, with orders having to be placed on CoWIN, many are still skeptical if this will work.

"We have been facing an issue since May and we do not have vaccines. Despite repeated attempts at contacting the suppliers, we were still not able to procure it. We reached out to the State Government to get back to the older way of buying the vaccines from it, but the issue wasn't addressed. Many people are still calling us and asking if our hospital has vaccines, but we have no stocks. Now, with the CoWIN procedure in place, we have no idea how long it is going to take, as many hospitals will register and try ordering for vaccines," said an official from a private hospital.

Another official from a private hospital pointed out that the large and corporate hospitals are still getting vaccine doses from manufacturers easily.

While night curfew will continue between 9 pm and 5 am, the weekend curfew has been lifted.

Though many people in urban areas preferred to remain indoors, villagers, mainly farmers thronged the markets in large numbers to purchase essentials for agricultural activities. Basanagouda Patil, a farmer from Sarwad village in Vijayapura district, pointed that, "The monsoon has arrived and there have already been a few good spells of rain. Agricultural activities, mainly sowing, has picked up and hence, I came to Vijayapura city to purchase seeds and other materials."

At the Tumakuru market, the prices of vegetables dropped with more produce arriving from neighbouring districts such as Chikkaballapur and Hassan.

Prohibitory orders in B'luru till July 19

Bengaluru: Following the easing of restrictions, Bengaluru City Police Commissioner Kamal Pant on Monday issued prohibitory orders under Section 144(1) of the CrPC which will be in effect till midnight on July 19. Accordingly, assembly of more than four persons in public places, except for the purposes which are exempted by the state government, is prohibited. Though the number of Covid-19 cases in Bengaluru city has come down substantially, it is considered appropriate to impose certain restrictions to prevent any spurt of fresh cases, the order stated.

Mask discipline must, insists Palike chief

Bengaluru: Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) Chief Commissioner Gaurav Gupta on Monday said the rise and fall in cases depends on how people follow mask discipline. Speaking to the media he said, some relaxations have been given as the number of cases have come down, and curbs can be eased even further if people follow Covid-appropriate behaviour. "It all depends on mask compliance and vaccination along with social distancing being followed. Then, there will be complete unlock," he said. He pointed that citizens should not let their guard down and special marshals committees and the police will be keeping a check. All those violating norms will be dealt with sternly. On the issue of vaccination, Gupta said, so far 50 per cent of the adult population in Bengaluru has taken the first dose. The number can be increased to even 80-85 per cent, provided there is sufficient stock available. All facilities and infrastructure are in place to ramp up the vaccination drive, but it depends upon availability of doses. Further decisions on increasing vaccination coverage and who to vaccinate will be decided by the government based on the suggestions of the experts, he said.

Haveri to hand out nutrition kits to kids

KIRAN BALANNANAVAR @ Haveri

IN order to effectively handle the anticipated third wave of Covid-19, the Haveri district administration has launched a project -- Vatsalya – to fortify immunity among children.

Under the programme, nutrition kits will be distributed to three lakh children in the district in the coming weeks. In Haveri, about 1,800 children contracted Covid-19 during the second wave of the pandemic. Authorities said that as the third wave is predicted to affect children, the administration has taken the initial steps to safeguard them."The Vatsalya kits will be made available at government hospitals. The idea is to boost immunity in children to fight the pandemic. The kit will include nutritional powder, an egg tray, milk powder and medicines, if needed," said Haveri Deputy Commissioner Sanjay Shettennavar.

He also added that free health check-up camps are being organised for those below 18 years of age. "As per the prediction of experts, the third wave is likely to be different and challenging. Hence, we decided to take these precautionary measures," he said.

A senior official said that a separate Covid-19 ward has been opened for the treatment of children in all government hospitals in the district.

Fear of 3rd wave hangs over UAS Krishi Mela

MALLIKARJUN HIREMATH @ Dharwad

THE much-awaited event for the farming community – the Krishi Mela — which is organised by the University of Agricultural Sciences (UAS), may be cancelled this year too. Last year too, the fair was postponed as the pandemic was at its peak. The fair attracts lakhs of farmers and experts from across the world.

Shekappa Patil, a farmer, said the Krishi Mela helps farmers in many ways as experts from various fields related to agriculture share their ideas and seeds and equipment are available for sale at competitive prices.

Hoping that the mela will be held against the odds, he said, "It will be good if the government and the university authorities show interest in organising the mela. If people follow Covid-19 norms, the fare will be a huge hit."

Another farmer said that the fair will help businessmen, bankers and various other sectors and agri startups are such a hit in such melas.

University Vice-Chancellor M B Chetti noted that everything depends on the government. "The pandemic has halted many development works in all sectors. If everything had gone according to plan, the fair would be in the 34th edition now. However, the varsity will be prepared if it gets any direction from the government to conduct the event," he said.

3-year-old Dubai girl beats cancer, regains vision in B'luru hospital

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

AFTER losing her vision to Acute Lymphoblastic Leukaemia, a form of blood cancer, which had spread to the brain, a three-year-old girl from Dubai was able to see again, thanks to doctors in Bengaluru.

The patient had started losing vision in both her eyes while under treatment at a hospital in Dubai. Her family had sought medical help from international experts, but her condition continued to deteriorate. Finally, she was brought to the Fortis Cancer Institute in Bengaluru.

During treatment here, she was administered the BiTE (Blinatumomab) monoclonal antibodies for over a month. The BiTE immunotherapy is a complex process that destroys cancer cells and is not a common form of treatment. The imported IV injection alone costs Rs 20 lakh.

Explaining how it works, Dr Mangesh P Kamath, Senior Consultant, Medical Oncology and Hemato-Oncology, Fortis Hospital, said that the BiTE immunotherapy controls the cancer and prevents further damage to the eye. "The T-lymphocytes are immune cells in the body that fights infection. BiTE molecules attach cancer cells to T-cells to destroy them. Abroad, this treatment costs $70,000," he added. The BiTE was administered along with chemotherapy inside the eye, and radiation near the optic nerve was given, which helped her regain full vision in the right eye and partial vision in the left eye, Dr Mangesh said. "After this, as her sister was a perfect match, we conducted a bone marrow transplant to repopulate normal cells. It takes two weeks to generate normal cells and immunosuppressants were given so that her body does not reject the donor bone marrow."

The entire process took 3.5 to 4 months, including chemotherapy, BiTE immunotherapy and bone marrow transplant. The child is currently free of blood cancer and is able to see clearly. It has been two months since the transplant and she is leading a normal life today.

Dr Manish Mattoo, Zonal Director, Fortis Hospital, Bannerghatta Road, said, "The patient's age was a big challenge, but our doctors, employing a multi-disciplinary approach, carried out the procedure successfully."

Accused dressed as lawyers enter court

Try to evade police fearing 'encounter'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

IT was a scene straight out of the movies at the Additional Chief Metropolitan Magistrate (ACMM) court in the city on Monday morning.

Seven persons, wanted for murder, had dressed as advocates and entered the court premises to appear before the judge to surrender. But the judicial officer refused to hear their petition. The accused said that they wanted to give in before the court as they feared a police "encounter" against them. The police did come into the scene and arrested them after the court rejected their petition.

The seven youth are allegedly involved in the murder of a financier, Madan, who was hacked to death in broad daylight in front of Banashankari temple on Friday afternoon. Sources said that the accused were on the run for the last three days and as they sensed that the police were closing in on them, they were petrified about their fate. They had feared that they would get a bullet or two in their bodies (read legs) as police encounters have unfolded in recent days.

"They had approached an advocate to surrender before the judge. According to the plan, they dressed up like advocates to enter the court premises without being noticed. Though the lawyer moved their petition to surrender, the judge refused to hear it. The police, who were deployed on the court premises, took them into custody. The accused were later handed over to Jayanagar police," an officer said.

The seven are said to be gang members of Lingaraj alias Linga, a rowdy from Shantinagar area, who was murdered by the associates of Nagaraj alias Naga, from Wilson Garden, in December last year.

Chikkaballapur SP G K Mithun Kumar said the accused were Mamatha (28) and her husband Venugopal Reddy (40), residents of Chakuvelahalli in Bagepalli taluk. Kumar said a police team worked on various angles and scanned CCTV footage, to zero in on the culprits.

Mamata said the couple has a six-year-old son, and when she conceived again, she did not inform her husband or in-laws. Her husband learnt about her pregnancy very recently. On Saturday, when she went into labour, they reached the hospital and she went into the toilet where she delivered the 8-month premature infant. Since it was a baby girl, and the family was not informed, the couple decided to kill the baby. They hanged the child with a thick cord, and left the hospital.

Police are questioning Venugopal Reddy's family.

Judge facing action over posts resigns

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Kochi

PERUMBAVOOR Sub-Judge S Sudeep, who is facing action by the Kerala High Court over his comments on several issues including the Sabarimala verdict by the Supreme Court on social media, has chosen to quit.

Sudeep is popular on cyberspace for his posts -- laced with satire -- on social issues. The inquiry by the High Court had found his social media engagement to be a violation of guidelines set for judicial officers and had served him notice seeking reasons for not terminating him.

"I quit today and submitted a one-line resignation letter. I am obliged to the system that has provided me the opportunity for 19 long years of service. Thanking all who have shed light on my path," said Sudeep in a Facebook post on Monday.

He also thanked Chief Justice S Manikumar and Justice B Sudheendra Kumar and Justice N Anil Kumar, who were his district judges, and Justice K Hema.

The High Court panel had found that he violated the memo issued in 2017 restraining judicial officers from making comments on sensitive matters on social media.

Sudeep confirmed that he submitted the resignation before the High Court, but declined to comment on the disciplinary proceedings. The High Court had earlier withheld his three increments as part of the action.

In an earlier Facebook post, Sudeep had said though he had attended the interview for the promotion as a district judge, the result went against him. "About 50 of my subordinates were promoted as district judges," he wrote.

SCORES of vehicles started arriving at Virugallur village in Tiruchy, moments after news of Fr Stan Swamy's death broke in the media. People from near and far descended in the 84-year-old priest's native village to express their condolences.

"He was a humble man who dedicated a lifetime to the welfare of tribal people," said Swamy's brother TPL Irudayaswamy (89). "I met him last in 2019, when he came down on a two-day trip. It was just a month before his arrest. The entire village remembers the mass he conducted at the Our Lady of Seven Dolours church here during that trip."

Fr Stan Swamy, born on 26 April 1937, was the fifth son of Lourdusamy and Kitytiyamal. He studied in the St Peters elementary school in the same village and went to St Joseph's in Tiruchy for intermediate education. He then did a BA in Hisotry from St Joseph's College. He later left to Dindigul to become a priest. From there, he went to Manila in Philippines where he completed his priesthood in 1970 and returned to India in 1971.

"He was such a content child," recalls Irudayaswamy. "He never asked us for anything. He was happy with a simple life. Till the end, he never held a bank account." Virugallur hosted a grand welcome for Swamy when he returned from Manila. "It's a tradition in our village, accorded to those who embrace priesthood. Stan was taken on a procession across the village, and was gifted a welcome plaque." The plaque still adorns the wall of Swamy's native home, preserved carefully by his family.

Swamy did not visit his village often. He came once every 3-4 years. "When he came in 2016, he wanted to see all our relatives. He was not sure if he would get to see them again," says Irudayaswamy. "Thaatha was my role model. I would sit for hours listening to his stories of activism, his college days, and meetings with different people," recalls his grand nephew Benitto (26). The family did not hear much from his since the arrest, but got news about his life in prison through Joseph Xavier, the current Director of Indian Social Institute.

Benitto says they heard about Swamy's death from the media. He recalls how it was Arun Ferreira, who was arrested along with Stan, who wrote letters to Xavier on the latter's behalf. "In most conversations, thaatha asked us all to be hopeful," he added.

10 Kannada activists detained in B'gavi for flouting Covid norms

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Belagavi

TENSION prevailed at the Belagavi City Corporation (BCC) here on Monday, when some Kannada activists arrived and tried to replace an old Kannada flag installed at the premises, with a new one. As the activists violated Covid guidelines by gathering in large numbers without masks, police took 10 of them into custody.

In December last year, Kannada activists had installed a Kannada flag at the BCC premises, allegedly without seeking permission from the authorities. This had snowballed into a huge controversy, with members of Maharashtra Ekikaran Samiti demanding that they too be allowed to install a saffron flag there. While the authorities didn't permit it, the police have been providing security to the Kannada flag for the past six months.

On Monday, a group of Kannada activists gathered at the BCC premises along with a new flag to change the old one, as it had worn out. But they were stopped by the police, who informed them that they will change the flag themselves, and requested the activists to return. But, they did not listen and started arguing with police, and also shouted slogans against the department.

Even Market ACP Sadashiv Kattimani tried convincing the activists that the flag would be changed and asked them to return, as they were violating Covid norms. When the activists failed to yield, police took 10 into custody.

Unruly Kerala MLAs must stand trial, says SC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi

TAKING a stern view of vandalism by Left MLAs in the Kerala Assembly in 2015, the Supreme Court on Monday said prima facie they must face trial.

Hearing a petition from the Kerala government seeking to withdraw cases against CPM leaders who were involved in the ugly face-off when the Left Front was in Opposition, the court said, "Prima facie we have to take a strict view of this kind of behaviour. Look at the behaviour of an MLA who throws mic on the floor of the house. He must face trial."

During the hearing, a bench of justices D Y Chandrachud and M R Shah said, "This kind of behaviour cannot be condoned. That is why face trial under the Prevention of Damage to Public Property Act. What is the use of guarding an MLA who prevented the passage of a finance bill?"

Justice Chandrachud maintained that "these (Assembly proceedings) are sentinels of democracy and that it is essential to maintain a sense of decorum".

"Now these incidents are happening (frequently). It is happening in the Parliament, too," Justice Shah weighed in.

The matter was adjourned for July 15.

Why need TN nod for Mekedatu: Siddu

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

"CHIEF Minister BS Yediyurappa's letter to his Tamil Nadu counterpart MK Stalin on the Mekedatu project was a wrong move. When our (Congress) government was in power, we never sought permission from Tamil Nadu," said Congress Legislature Party leader Siddaramaiah here on Monday.

At an event organised by the Youth Congress at Basavanagudi, he said, "According to the Supreme Court order, we have to go ahead with our work. It is not acceptable that our government wrote a letter seeking permission from a lower riparian state. Tamil Nadu will not face any water shortage if Karnataka builds the Mekedatu dam."

SIddaramaiah kicked up a row by saying..."'Hamara Kutta Hamara Gali Mein Sher. We have 25 MPs and the CM who are tigers here, but are afraid to ask the Centre for our share of funds. If I was the CM, I would have sat on a dharna outside the office of Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman, demanding the release of Rs 5,495 crore which is due to us. They are all scared of Prime Minister Narendra Modi. Do we need such a government," he asked.

While some in the BJP ignored the issue, saying Siddaramaiah would have used these words lightly, MLC UB Venkatesh, who was present on the occasion, clarified, "Hamara Gali mein Sher... definitely did not refer to our MPs and CM. Besides, it is time to get cracking and get Rs 5,495 crore, not divert the issue by saying Siddaramaiah indulged in name calling."

'DPR GOT CENTRE'S OK 2 YEARS AGO'

"WE will continue the legal battle and go ahead with the project," Home, Law and Parliamentary Affairs Minister Basavaraj Bommai reiterated on Monday. Questioning the tone and tenor of the TN CM's letter, he said, "This is not a new project. A Detailed Project Report (DPR) has been already prepared." A senior officer in the Water Resources Department said DPR received an in-principle approval from the Centre around two years ago. "We can go ahead with the project once we get clearance from the National Green Tribunal (NGT) and Central Water Commission." The officer said that the Rs 9,000 crore reservoir project that can store 67.15 tmcft of water can generate 400 MW of power. Karnataka can utilise 4.75 tmcft for providing drinking water.

Jagan seeks Javadekar's nod for irrigation scheme

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Vijayawada

EXPLAINING the need of expediting the proposed Rayalaseema Lift Irrigation Scheme (RLIS) in view of neighbouring Telangana not allowing to built up water levels in Srisailam reservoir to +854 feet, Chief Minister YS Jagan Mohan Reddy Monday wrote a letter to Union Minister of Environment, Forest and Climate Change Prakash Javadekar to issue environmental clearance for the proposed scheme at the earliest.

TS ASKS NGT TO STOP AP FROM EXECUTING RLIS

Hyderabad: The Telangana government on Monday filed a petition in the National Green Tribunal (Southern Zone), alleging that the Andhra Pradesh government is taking up construction of the Rayalaseema Lift Irrigation Scheme at Pothireddypadu in violation of the NGT orders issued last year. In October last year, the NGT had directed the AP government not to proceed with construction of the RLIS project without getting environmental clearance from the Union Ministry of Environment and Forests (MoEF.

In his letter, Jagan Mohan Reddy brought to the notice of the Union Minister the ₹whimsical attitude' of Telangana in generating power from the common reservoirs of both the states on river Krishna unilaterally violating all the operational protocols, agreements and directions of the Krishna River Management Board (KRMB), depriving the right of AP to utilise its allocated water.

Jagan said that Telangana is not allowing water levels to be go up in Srisailam reservoir and have utilised 19 tmc out of 26 tmc inflows from June 1, 2021 for power generation by drawing water at 796 ft itself. "In my earlier letter too, it was brought to your notice that unless a level of +854 ft is reached, water cannot be drawn through gravity from Pothireddypadu to meet drinking, irrigation needs of the chronically drought prone Rayalaseema region, Nellore, Prakasam districts and also to supply drinking water to Chennai city," the Chief Minister said.

STAN SWAMY AND THE MURDER OF JUSTICE

No one who watches Father Stan Swamy's last video message will be able to hold back a dull heaviness in the chest. A sense of profound depression about where India is at present with regard to the democracy it preaches loftily—and wears so ostentatiously on its sleeve at global fora. A democracy it makes sure it violates at every possible step back home when no one is looking. In the dark cells of our prisons, teeming with thousands of undertrials. Recorded before his arrest by the NIA on 8 October 2020, the video shows the 84-year-old campaigner for Adivasi freedoms talking with saintly calm, speaking against the injustice, yet stoically ready to face it on behalf of everyone. Words that leave you in no doubt about what exactly our 'system' has done. It has killed a man who was fighting peacefully, using perfectly non-violent means, to ensure the tribals of central India are given justice. That the oldest inhabitants of this land are not treated like criminals for seeking their basic rights—over "3,000 young Adivasis are languishing in jail", he says. "They wanted to put me out of the way, and the easiest way was to implicate me in some serious cases." Fr Swamy has never even visited Bhima Koregaon. What was claimed as evidence? "Files on his computer." Global digital forensics experts have clearly linked "files on the computer" in the Bhima Koregaon cases to malware that can plant such evidence.

If there was real evidence in a serious case, India would at the bare minimum expect speedy investigation and prosecution—instead of the sick spectacle of the courts waiting for an old man suffering from Parkinson's to be ground to death by prison, denying him bail again and again, refusing him even a dignified death. The debate over UAPA and its lethal Section 43D(2) has just begun—wait for the global opprobrium, the only thing that seems to work.

OVER TO THE OLYMPICS NOW, WITH HOPE

Finally, the qualification cycle for the Tokyo Olympics is over. In the end, around 115 athletes (as on Sunday) will represent India at the Games—a trifle short of the 2016 mark. The numbers are not always a good indicator for medals. The Rio Games five years ago was a testimony to the dismal medal-per-athletes ratio. Out of the around 115 athletes, only two returned with medals—P V Sindhu in badminton and Sakshi Malik in wrestling. On the contrary, we had just over 80 athletes at the London Olympics and came back with six medals, including two silver (Vijay Kumar and Sushil Kumar). The Beijing Games had a similar narrative—around 55 athletes and three medals. In short, numbers don't always reflect the strength of the team. Olympics are an extraordinary stage where skill is not always enough and challenges are manifold. The romance lies in its unpredictability.

This may not be India's largest contingent as envisaged by the sports ministry or the Indian Olympic Association. However, in terms of widening its base—from 12 sports in Beijing to 18 this time—it has achieved one of its main objectives. Sports like equestrian, sailing, fencing and even swimming have seen athletes qualify directly for the first time or in decades. A small step, but nothing compared to other nations that dominate. In gymnastics, we just managed one slot. In athletics, the hype around the 4x400m relay teams (more with women's) fizzled as the qualification days ended. The men's team just about made it, while the women's team dropped out of the qualification zone. It had been quite a remarkable year too. Not in terms of performance as much as the circumstances under which they qualified. It was a start-stop-start cycle and every athlete had to rely on the art of patience and strong resolve to qualify.

All eyes are now on Tokyo. The administrators including the sports ministry are confident of coming back with a record haul. The chances though seem challenging, especially with strict soft-quarantine rules for athletes coming from India. The IOA has already called it discriminatory. Athletes, however, are prepared for anything in these uncertain times. On August 8, when the curtains are to fall on this edition of the Games, the reality will emerge. Until then let's live on hope.

THE PERPETUAL PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS

AMIT BANDRE

HARISH BIJOOR

Brand Guru & Founder, Harish Bijoor Consults

Why do we live and work the way we do? Why do we do all that we do in a single day and repeat it every day? Why do we work so hard? Why do we earn money?

There will be many answers to these questions. But the one underlying theme, after the basics of living are met, seems to be a perpetual quest for happiness. The pursuit of happiness seems to be that one big thing all of us chase religiously everyday. Knowingly and unknowingly.

What is happiness then? At the very peripheral level, happiness for me is a beach bed in Goa. Happiness is my favorite Pomfret Recheado, served fresh and hot. Happiness is a cup of coffee with my favorite biscotti. Happiness is what makes me happy. And most of these are very small things.

What makes you happy? And are we happy all the time, or at least most of the time? Are there countries that are happier than others? And are there whole groups of people who are happier than everyone else? What nudges happiness really?

There are many questions. If I look around at happiness studies in the world of academics, there are many. Even the United Nations takes happiness seriously. The UN Sustainable Development Solutions Network publishes a World Happiness Report annually. Their studies across every one of the UN member nations collates measures and metrics of happiness, and lists the top 10 happy nations every year.

What are the metrics they use to measure happiness? The GDP per capita, life expectancy, social support structures, trust and corruption indices, perceived freedom to make life decisions and ultimately a big word called generosity. From every country, 1,000 people are asked to rate their "quality of life" on a 0 to 10 scale.

The latest report for 2021 lists Finland, Denmark and Switzerland as the top three happy countries. Finland with its reverence for teachers, Denmark with its respect for the planet and Switzerland a veritable "referendum nation" with a staunch belief in citizen participation in governance decisions every moment, seem to be the toppers on the happiness scale. Are these the final measures that decide which nation is happier than the other? And can happiness be measured?

Every one of us is in the pursuit of happiness, but have we discovered what it is? When I think about myself, for a long time happiness meant the wherewithal to live a good life. A life that did not have you wanting for the basics of good living. And true happiness meant earning it all honestly with hard work. Happiness was the money that bought you comfort and the savings that gave a certain sense of security for family.

And then the definition changed for me. The sad thing about what we chase materially as happiness is that the joy it gives back vanishes as soon as you have partaken of it. Money in many ways can buy happiness, but once it has been bought, the game is over. Happiness in many ways turns out to be a greed-chase. It's quite like hunger. One satiation of hunger at breakfast does not quell hunger forever. At lunch time one is hungry again. Scriptures of every genre have said plenty on this and I will therefore not dwell on it for now.

What is true happiness then? To each of us, it will be different for sure. For me, the discovery happened quite accidentally. The money I earned tried to buy me happiness all the while. Sadly it could not. I tried and tried.

> One must own happiness only temporarily and then pass it on to another. It is therefore a cascade for me. Once you have partaken of it (and its temporary joy), it is time to pass it on to another who deserves it. The pandemic gave each one of us so many opportunities to make someone else happy

I then discovered, to my joy, that happiness is not something one can own. In fact, one must not. One must own happiness only temporarily and then pass it on to another. Happiness is therefore a cascade for me. Once you have partaken of it (and its temporary joy), it is time to pass it on to another who deserves it. The pandemic gave each one of us so many opportunities to make someone else happy.

And guess what, someone else will surely make me happy as the virtuous cycle of the spread of happiness cascades all around. The happiness that I own and want to own is a very selfish form of happiness. It never stays. If my happiness cannot make someone else happy, what's the real use of it then?

Happiness is therefore a key requisite and indeed the right of every man, woman and child. The charter of every nation needs to incorporate this prominently.

Where does your happiness begin and mine end? What is the geography of happiness? Must my happiness touch yours? Must yours touch mine? And must we share it all more than we do today?

The pandemic has given us this great big opportunity to think. As the world continues to focus on development as a vital index that contributes to happiness, we need to think about it all over again. What is development really? And how does it create happiness? Is the relationship between ostensible development by mass consumerist society directly related to happiness? Or is it inversely related? Conversely? Perversely? Let's think it out.

The key question remains: Is development a means to happiness? Is development more important than happiness? Or is happiness more important than development? Some of our Nordic nations seem to have got it right already. As I go through the UN list of Happy Countries, there are buzz-phrases that light up. Iceland is happy because people help one another in a crisis all the time. The Netherlands boasts of the "happiest children in the world". Norway takes pride in the responsible management of its natural resources. Sweden talks about the ultimate standards of "social equality".

And finally, can one measure happiness? Is GDP per capita and life expectancy a good measure of happiness? Or is the smile on the faces of the people we make happy a more perfect measure?

L'DWEEP: WHEN THE LAW UNSETTLES EVERYTHING

KALEESWARAM RAJ

Lawyer, Supreme Court of India

'Small is Beautiful' is the title of E F Schumacher's famous book published in 1973. He was an economist and in his seminal work, he talked about fairer economic policies with smaller and appropriate technology. Lakshadweep, to a good extent, embodied his philosophy. The island is unique and wonderful—ecologically, culturally, geographically and economically. As an archipelago of 36 islands with a total extent of only 32 sq km, this terrain is India's smallest Union territory. Its literacy rate is 91.85%, very close to that of Kerala where it is 96.2%. It has 10 village panchayats. Only 10 islands are inhabited, and the total population is only around 70,000. People are in general not very rich. They were, however, happy for there has been less poverty and much less any destitution in their homeland. The crime rate is very low according to the National Crime Records Bureau. There was not even a single Covid-19 case reported in 2020. The health index is generally better.

The island is now very much in the news. The nefarious schemes formulated by the Lakshadweep administration have turned the euphoria about it upside down. As history shows, bad politics often manifests through bad laws and the island too is no exception. It has no Legislative Assembly. Article 239 of the Constitution says that Union territories are to be administered by the President through an administrator appointed by him, if there is no law to the contrary. Laws are proposed and promulgated by the administration.

The Centre, through the administration, has come up with four draft regulations this year: The Lakshadweep Development Authority Regulation, The Prevention of Anti-Social Activities (PASA) Regulation, The Lakshadweep Animal Preservation Regulation and The Lakshadweep Panchayat Regulation.

The so-called "development" regulation fails to honour the people's basic rights over land. The draft law proposes "town planning" for which a Planning and Development Authority (PDA) will be constituted, as per Section 7. The development plan will be imposed upon the people, from the top. This is dramatically opposite to the system of the village panchayat having a pivotal role in designing the future of the island. Wajahat Habibullah, a retired bureaucrat who was the administrator of the island during 1987-90, said in a recent article that the Union territory had a decentralised system by which "the Island Development Council, at the apex of the local government, was mandated to advise the administrator on development". As part of the development plan, the whole terrain comes under the control of the authority as per Section 18. The land allocation, its use, demarcation of zones, constructions, reallocation of people, control of almost everything from architectural features to agricultural land, all become the prerogative of the government or the authority. Section 71 gives power to the PDA for removal or demolition of buildings in the areas covered under the scheme. Section 72 empowers the District Magistrate to summarily evict the occupants in the scheme-covered areas. Section 119 is drastic as it contemplates imprisonment of the "obstructers" of the scheme for a period up to two months, apart from a fine.

The right to property is no longer a fundamental right in India. Article 19(1)(f), which promised this right, was deleted with effect from 20.06.1979. But for the indigenous tribes in a natural habitat, right to land is a fundamental right. This proposition was laid down by the Supreme Court in Samatha v. State of Andhra Pradesh (1997). About 95% of the island's population are Scheduled Tribes. About 94.8% of the small land holdings belong to these tribes, according to the Census reports. Therefore, going by the geographic, ethnic and environmental features, the draconian regulation, despite its legal rhetoric on development, cannot pass constitutional muster.

> The penal provisions in the Prevention of Anti-Social Activities draft regulation are also worth examining. Perhaps, the very purpose of this is to suppress the protest that the administration anticipates while proposing the anti-democratic laws

The penal provisions in the PASA draft regulation are also worth examining. Perhaps, the very purpose of this is to suppress the protest that the administration anticipates while proposing the anti-democratic laws. The draft contemplates preventive detention, by way of Section 3. Detention based on a vague, nonexistent or irrelevant charge is sought to be validated by Section 6. When the fertility rate in the island is much less than the country's average, the disqualification of those with more than two children to get elected to the panchayat does not make sense, though it would serve a communal agenda. So is the case with the anti-cow slaughter proposal.

The island is ecologically fragile. A recent study by scientists at IIT-Kharagpur says that the rise in sea levels between 0.4 mm and 0.9 mm annually might lead to coastal erosion and even submergence of some of the islets. Climate change impacts the island ecology more quickly and manifestly. Coral reefs are already destroyed immensely due to the mindless "developmental" activities. An appeal by a group of scientists said that the development plan in the island ignores India's basic environmental legislations like the Environment Protection Act (1986) and the Biodiversity Act (2002). The idea of Environment Impact Assessment for major projects has its genesis in the 1986 enactment. The report of the Justice Raveendran Committee appointed by the Supreme Court is also crucial for the island. It contains a plea for conservation of the corals, lagoons and other habitats. The report puts forward a comprehensive plan dealing with topics like coconut plantation and deep-sea fishing. The change of land use and provision for a new pattern of development now proposed go against ecological sanity.

Legislation is too serious a matter that it cannot be left to the legislators and much less to the administrators. Consultation with the local people only improves the law's democratic legitimacy. For that, we need statesmen rather than politicians. The pity, however, is that sometimes, we don't even have politicians, but only traders at the helm of affairs.

Onus on Centre

It may be noted that when the BJP was in the Opposition, there were many demands for a JPC probe over various scams. Now that a French NGO has claimed that corruption and bribes were there in the Rafale deal, the onus is on the Centre to prove its innocence. It cannot be just said that there is no truth in the allegations though the Supreme Court had earlier dismissed the case.

Fresh blood in babudom too

In recent times we have been hearing a lot about an imminent Cabinet reshuffle. With the Union government almost close to completing half its term, I think this is the right time to remove some deadwood and breathe fresh air into the administration. Simultaneously the government should go in for a similar exercise in the bureaucracy. While experience does have its value, it's time to stop consecutive extensions in the bureaucracy, especially to those entrenched in seats of power for a long time after their retirement. The government needs to infuse more youth into the bureaucracy, even if it means lateral induction from the corporate world.

Statements heartening

This is with reference to People who say Muslims should leave India can't be Hindus: RSS (July 5). The RSS chief's statements are welcome. His reiteration that all Indians have the same DNA and his assertion that he is not saying this as an image makeover exercise are heartening, notwithstanding his bitter critics taking this with a pinch of salt. The RSS along with the BJP and other ancillaries should take upon themselves the responsibility of disproving their opponents. There should be tangible action to curb fundamentalism of all religions across all regions.

Encroachment continues

Despite several court orders to the authorities to protect water bodies, encroachment is continuing unabated (HC orders joint inspection of Peravallur lake, July 4). The Madras HC taking note of private parties allegedly obtaining patta illegally in land belonging to Peravallur Eri in Chennai's Kolathur is yet another case in point. How long will this menace of encroachment of water bodies continue?

Gruesome prank

Kerala should be ashamed of the recent incident in which a prank led to the death of an infant. The gruesome episode brings into focus the perils in using technology and the virtual pitfalls that await us.

Shaj Koodathil, Mahe

Misusing technology

The suicide of two girls in Kerala following a prank they allegedly played upon their relative has shaken the conscience of the state. The incident is the result of the way in which we handle technology. Idle minds that play round the clock with mobiles will play such tricks on others and this may bring untold misfortunes to society.

25% rise in plaints from women

2020-21 NCW report shows increase in domestic violence, cyber crime during lockdown

SUMI SUKANYA DUTTA @ New Delhi

THE Covid-19 pandemic seems to be proving difficult particularly for women in India as the latest report by the National Commission for Women (NCW), confirming the early indications, shows that it recorded over 25 per cent complaints by aggrieved women as compared to the previous year.

In 2020-21, the commission received 26,513 complaints from women, marking a sharp rise from the 20,309 complaints registered in 2019-20, which means an increase of 25.09 per cent in the complaints, a recently compiled report by the NCW shows. The maximum number of complaints received by the NCW was registered as a violation of the right to live with dignity and in 2020-21 8,688 women approached the Commission saying that this right was violated.

COMPLAINTS BY AGGRIEVED WOMEN

Categories	2020-21	2019-20
Cyber crime against women	797	458
Harassment of married women/ dowry harassment	4,209	3,963
Domestic violence	6,049	3,369
Right to live with dignity	8,688	5,061
Police apathy	1,460	1,968

There was also a steep rise in the cases of domestic violence and 6,049 women, nearly double than the previous year, recorded their complaints with the commission in 2020-21. Other categories that saw a worrying rise against women included cybercrime and harassment due to dowry.

Women activists have said the Covid-induced lockdowns, that saw men staying at home for longer hours, and financial volatility that families have undergone due to worsening of the economic situation may have a major role to play in increasing violence against women. Chairperson of the NCW Rekha Sharma said while there had been a worrying rise in crimes against women, she also pointed out that the panel had made it easier for women to reach out and complain.

"At one point during the lockdown, our team was working in three shifts to record and address the complaints of aggrieved women," she told this newspaper. Sharma also assured that through a real-time dashboard, the women's rights body has kept a track of each of the complaints and has been taking up suitable follow-up action in all the cases.

A parliamentary panel, led by Congress MP Anand Sharma, in its report tabled in March, had recommended that cash transfers and a moratorium on loan repayments be continued to empower women.

"The committee notes that there was a sudden spurt in domestic violence and trafficking of women and children during the unprecedented Covid-19 pandemic outbreak," said the report adding that this was mainly due to disruption in economic activities, work from home and family spending more time at home during lockdowns.

GOVT TELLS HC

'Twitter lost immunity as it failed to comply with IT rules'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

The Centre on Monday informed the Delhi High Court that microblogging site Twitter has failed to comply with the country's new IT rules, which is the law of the land and is mandatorily required to be complied with.

The deadline for complying with the new rules was May 26. "In spite of the three months' time granted to all SSMIs to comply with the IT Rules 2021 having expired on 26.05.2021, Respondent No. 2 (Twitter) has failed to fully comply with the same," the affidavit stated.

The government said any non-compliance amounts to a breach of provisions of the new digital rules, leading to Twitter losing its immunity conferred under the IT Act. Twitter has lost immunity from criminal prosecution for content on it since it hasn't complied with the IT rules on the appointment of grievance redressal officers, the government told the HC.

"Rule 7 provides that when an intermediary fails to observe these Rules, the provisions of section 79 (1) will not be available and the intermediary shall be liable for any punishment under any law for the time being in force in respect of the offending content," the affidavit said.

It went on to note how Twitter's interim resident grievance officer and interim nodal contact person resigned from their positions, after which grievances raised in India were being dealt with by a person in the US. Twitter had recently appointed California-based Jeremy Kessel as the new grievance officer for India after interim officer Dharmendra Chatur stepped down.

The affidavit also made it clear that Twitter will not be protected under the safe harbour protections under the Information Technology Act if it continues to be in non-compliance with the IT Rules, 2021.

Centre's new scheme targets basic literacy, numeracy by Class 3

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Centre on Monday launched an initiative with an aim to ensure that every child in India necessarily attains foundational literacy and numeracy by the end of Class III, by 2026-27.

The scheme called National Initiative for Proficiency in reading with Understanding and Numeracy (NIPUN) Bharat is set to be implemented by the school education department of the Centre. The government said a five-tier implementation mechanism will be set up across national, state, district, block, and school levels in all states.

The new scheme is going to be part of the flagship school education programme, Samagra Shiksha, according to the Union Education Ministry. The government said it has already provided states with a fund of ₹2688.18 crore for the implementation of the various interventions of the foundational stage in 2021-22 under the Samagra Shiksha Abhiyaan.

A statement by the ministry said the initiative will focus on providing access and retaining children in foundational years of schooling, teacher capacity building, development of high quality and diversified student and teacher resources, learning materials and tracking the progress of each child in achieving learning outcomes.

The programme aims to cover the learning needs of kids in the age group of 3 to 9 years. Teachers will need to focus on every child for developing basic language, literacy and numeracy skills

Ramesh Pokhriyal, Education Minister

Launching the scheme, Education Minister Ramesh Pokhriyal 'Nishank' said the programme aims to cover the learning needs of children in the age group of 3 to 9 years, adding that teachers will need to focus on every child for developing basic language, literacy and numeracy skills which will help them develop into better readers and writers.

It envisages making the experience of learning at the foundational stage holistic, integrated, inclusive, enjoyable, and engaging, said the minister. The success of NIPUN Bharat, the statement said, will depend on teachers, so, there will be a special emphasis on the capacity building of teachers.

Pandemic taught us to work together, says Modi at Co-WIN Global Conclave

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

PRIME Minister Narendra Modi on Monday said the biggest lesson that the pandemic has taught the world is to work together and move ahead for humanity and the cause of humans.

"We have to learn from each other and guide each other about our best practices. Right from the beginning of this pandemic, India has been committed to sharing all our experiences, expertise and resources with the global community in this pandemic," the prime minister said during his address at the Co-Win Global Conference.

According to sources, over 140 countries attended the Conclave including around 400 delegates from these countries, besides representatives from European Commission and UN Offices in India participated at the Conclave. "Ministers from five countries — Bangladesh (Zunaid Ahmed Palak, State Minister, ICT Division, Ministry of Posts, Telecommunications and Information Technology); Bhutan (Lyonpo Dechen Wangmo, Minister of Health); Maldives (Ahmed Naseem, Health Minister); Afghanistan (Dr. Wahid Majrooh, Minister for Public Health); and Guyana (Dr. Frank C. Anthony, Minister of Health) addressed the conclave," a source said.

The sources added that the conclave had an in-depth technical session on Co-WIN with presentations on the development and impact of the platform; its architecture; roadmap for sharing Co-WIN; and India's Digital Health Mission.

Technology is integral to our fight against Covid-19. That is why we made our Covid tracing and tracking app open source as soon as it was technically feasible

Narendra Modi, Prime Minister

"Technology is integral to our fight against Covid-19. Luckily, the software is one area in which there are no resource constraints. That is why we made our Covid tracing and tracking app open source as soon as it was technically feasible," the PM said. The conclave aims to share India's experience regarding universal vaccination to combat Covid through Co-WIN, according to the National Health Authority.

"India is excited to join hands with the world to win over Covid-19 together with Co-WIN," the NHA said in its statement. Union Health Minister Harsh Vardhan inaugurated the event while foreign secretary Harsh Vardhan Shringla welcomed the dignitaries. "Our highest leadership has never lost sight of the fact that responsible global citizens help each other in difficult times. We will continue to share our resources, experience and expertise with others, to the best of our abilities. Sources said several countries showed interest in the adoption of the Co-WIN platform.

PLEA AGAINST CONG JUNKED

The Supreme Court on Monday refused to entertain a plea seeking a probe by the NIA into the allegation by the BJP that the Congress party created a "toolkit" to tarnish the image of the country. The petitioner, advocate Shashank Shekhar Jha, urged that the alleged toolkit be probed to disclose any offence under Section 120-B and various other sections of the IPC and Section 13 of the UAPA, and to secure the custody of the said toolkit.

INDIA REJECTS PAK CLAIM

India on Monday dismissed Pakistan's claim that an Indian was behind the Johar town attack in Pakistan last month, saying all such allegations are "baseless" and "motivated". The blast had taken place outside the residence of 26/11 mastermind Hafiz Saeed. "Pakistan is giving shelter to all terror groups and the recent addition is the Taliban. The association LeT and JeM in training camps and infiltration in India are known to everyone," a source said.

Panchayat polls victory a shot in arm for Yogi

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

AFTER months of speculation over the leadership issue in Uttar Pradesh, Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath is now basking in the glory of the victory in the Zila Panchayat elections. With Prime Minister Narendra Modi leading the party brass in hailing the chief minister for the victory, the BJP has seemingly given a clear message that the party will no more have ears for factionalism in the state unit.

With 66 of the 75 Zila Panchayat chairman seats in its kitty, the BJP is already going to the town with claims that the people in the state have rejected the "false narrative built by the Opposition over the second wave of the Covid-19 pandemic".

While Zila Panchayat polls aren't entirely known to be a true indicator to predict the outcome of the state Assembly elections, the BJP's performance nonetheless has clearly made the brass of the party back to the chief minister fully. Along with the Prime Minister, top functionaries of the BJP in their congratulatory messages made it a point to credit the Adityanath along with the state unit chief Swatantra Dev Singh for the victory in the elections.

The Zila Panchayat elections appear to have given a shot in the arm of the chief minister, who faced speculation of the top party leadership sending the former senior official in the Prime Minister's Office (PMO) A K Sharma to keep a check on him.

After a series of meetings in the national capital, including one with the Prime Minister with the UP chief minister, Sharma was finally appointed the vice president of the state unit to put an end to all speculation about his role in the government besides the Cabinet reshuffle in Lucknow.

Gupkar unhappy with APM outcome

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

IN its first joint statement since the June 24 meeting with Prime Minister Narendra Modi in New Delhi, the Gupkar Alliance Monday asserted that Assembly elections in Jammu and Kashmir should be held only after restoration of statehood. The six-party alliance expressed disappointment at the outcome of the All-Party Meeting (APM) chaired by the PM saying "whatever little hope we had was not fulfilled and no assurance was given and no CBMs (confidence building measures) announced".

"All the PAGD (Peoples Alliance for Gupkar Declaration) members expressed their disappointment at the outcome of Delhi meeting, especially at the absence of any substantial CBMs like release of prisoners and taking concrete steps to end the siege and atmosphere of suppression that has choked J&K since 2019," Alliance spokesman and CPM leader Mohammad Yousuf Tarigami said in a statement.

The Alliance leaders met at chairman Farooq Abdullah's residence at Srinagar on Sunday evening to deliberate on the APM. "No assurance was given. No message was received by the people on CBMs,"

Alliance leaders met chairman Farooq Abdullah in Srinagar on Sunday | FILE

Tarigami said, adding that "the Centre should respond to our suggestions and take some CBMs to restore trust and faith".

On restoration of statehood, he said both PM Modi and Home Minister Amit Shah had promised to do so within and outside Parliament. "Why they have not fulfilled the promise so far is our concern," he said.

Tarigami said the PAGD does not want Delhi-type statehood but restoration of the pre-August 2019 status. Assembly election must be held only after restoration of full statehood to J&K. "To make the election process credible, the Centre should restore statehood to J&K," he added.

Asked whether the Gupkar Alliance would meet the Delimitation Commission which will begin its four-day visit on Tuesday, Tarigami said political parties that are part of the Gupkar Alliance will take their own decision on this.

Now, trouble for Congress in Haryana

NEW DELHI: While the Congress is yet to settle the differences in Punjab Congress, trouble is now brewing in the Haryana unit ahead of an organisational reshuffle as various state factions are building pressure for key posts in state units.

A group of MLAs backing former Haryana CM Bhupinder Singh Hooda on Monday met organisational secretary K C Venugopal in New Delhi ahead of changes in Haryana Congress. The MLAs also expressed objections to some of the decisions by Haryana PCC chief Kumari Selja, who took over in 2019 from Ashok Tanwar. They also want a prominent role for Hooda in the organisation to strengthen the party in the state.

The party is working to announce district congress committees (DCC) that have been dysfunctional since 2015 and now the fight is to control the DCCs. While Hooda's are a powerful group in the state, Selja considered close to Congress chief Sonia Gandhi has the support of a group of MLAs. Party's media chief Randeep Singh Surjewala, who has the backing of Rahul Gandhi, leads another faction in the state. "The organisational reshuffle is scheduled soon and people supporting different groups are putting pressure. They want to control on PCC office bearers and DCCs also," said party sources. Last week, a group of MLAs had met the AICC in-charge of Haryana Vivek Bansal and discussed proposed reshuffle. The party has 31 MLAs in Haryana. ENS

IEDs used for IAF Jammu station attack had cocktail of RDX and nitrate

NEW DELHI: A cocktail of explosive material, including RDX and nitrate, was used in the two IEDs that were dropped from drones at the Indian Air Force (IAF) station in Jammu, sources in the security establishment said on Monday.

They added that RDX is not available in India and seems to have been sourced from Pakistan. This evidence can help establish Pakistan's role in the attack, sources said. Sharing details of the IEDs, they said one IED was bigger in size and was probably meant to cause infrastructural damage. The other was intended to hit personnel with more splinters and ball-bearings.

A GPS drone, suspected to be a 'Made in China' product, was used in the attack in Jammu IAF station, sources added. Last week, DGP J&K Dilbag Singh said the banned Lashkar-e-Taiba outfit was suspected to have been behind the drone attack. In the wake of the drone threat, security agencies in Jammu have now installed an anti-drone system at the Air Force station.

Anti-drone systems

The attack has also triggered the process to procure anti-drone systems. The IAF has issued a request for information to procure 10 counter unmanned aircraft system (CUAS) through indigenous route within one year after the contract is signed. "The Ministry of Defence intends to acquire 10 CUAS for IAF through indigenous route...," the RFI said.

The RFI was issued just a day after of attacks on June 27. As per the RFI, only the Indian Original Equipment Manufacturers will be allowed to participate. As for the delivery of the systems, the RFI fixes a stipulated time period. The systems should be able to detect, track, identify, designate and neutraliSe hostile counter unmanned aircraft system. ENS

'If not for Swamy, I'd be languishing in jail'

Writer remembers how the Jesuit came to rescue when Jharkhand govt came after him

DAMODAR TURI

AS I was actively participating in anti-government movements to oppose anti-people policies and activities of the Jharkhand government, I was arrested twice by the state police, once in 2008 and the second time in 2018, on fake charges. Had Stan Swamy not come to my rescue, I would have still been languishing in jail.

It is just because of his determination to battle against the system that I am not only moving freely, but was also acquitted in one of those cases in 2018. Stan Swamy was instrumental in my release from jail as he fought pro-actively both inside and outside the court.

In the first case, when statewide protests were organised and the matter was highlighted by the media, then the investigating officers went on the backfoot. Because of intense public glare they could not twist the case the way they wanted to and I was acquitted by the court.

In the second case, I was not being treated well in the jail but statewide protests led by Swamy were organised following which I was ensured basic facilities in jail.

On both occasions, statewide protests were organised at Governor House in Ranchi and all the district headquarters. Rallies were organised and dharnas were also staged across the state.

Firstly, I was charged with a fake case under UAPA in 2008. A fake charge of working for the Maoist organisation was leveled against me despite the fact that no document or evidence related to Maoist connection was recovered from me. In 2018, I was arrested on charges of handling the banned trade union called Mazdoor Sangathan Samiti even though I had never been a member of thatorganisation. I only used to go there to deliver speech, but I was termed a handler for the organisation and arrested at midnight.

All of a sudden, the organisation was banned by the state government and some of us were arrested along with the workers of the organisation.

In the first case, I was lodged in Ranchi jail while the second time I was imprisoned at Giridih jail.

The way the British killed Birsa Munda in jail by poisoning him, 84-year old Father Stan Swamy, who had nothing to do with Elgar Parishad case, has been killed in the same way. This is nothing but a cold-blooded murder by this system. Considering his old age, he could have been put under house arrest as he was not going anywhere. Despite the fact that he cooperated well with the National Investigation Aency, he was arrested and was not granted bail even after becoming critically ill.

EU spl rep says raised Stan issue with India

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

EUROPEAN Union Special Representative for Human Rights Eamon Gilmore on Monday condoled the death of tribal activist Stan Swamy.

"India: I am very saddened to hear that Father Stan Swamy has passed away. A defender of indigenous peoples' rights. He was held in detention for the past 9 months. The EU had been raising his case repeatedly with authorities," Gilmore tweeted.

Gilmore was referring to the letter in December last by 21 Members of European Parliament (MEPs) to Prime Minister Narendra Modi seeking the release of Swamy.

Mary Lawlor, a United Nations Special Rapporteur for human rights defenders, termed the news of Swamy's death as devastating and called detention of human rights defenders inexcusible. "The news from India today is devastating. Human Rights Defender and Jesuit priest Father Stan Swamy has died in custody, nine months after his arrest on false charges of terrorism. Jailing HRDs is inexcusable," she tweeted.

Earlier in the day, Stanislaus D'Souza SJ, Jesuit Provincial of India, issued a statement, saying he joined all Jesuit priests in extending their condolences to Swamy's family. "I express my deepest condolences to the family members, and all those who stood by Stan."

Twelve BJP MLAs get 1-yr suspension for abusing Chair

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

THE two-day Maharashtra Assembly's Monsoon session started on a stormy note with the suspension of 12 BJP MLAs for one year for their "misbehaviour" with the presiding officer in the Speaker's chamber.

NCP leader and minister Nawab Malik accused the BJP members of misbehaving with presiding officer Bhaskar Jadhav. The Assembly was adjourned four times over the issue.

Parliamentary affair minister Anil Parab tabled the motion to suspend the BJP MLAs — Parag Alwani, Ram Satpute, Sanjay Kute, Ashish Shelar, Abhimannu Pawar, Girish Mahajan, Atul Bhatkhalkar, Shirish Pingale, Jaykumar Rawal, Yogesh Sagar, Narayan Kuche, and Kirtikumar Bhangdia — in the House. It was approved by a majority in the Assembly.

The opposition BJP protested this decision and walked out from the House. Leader of Opposition Devendra Fadnavis said that the charges were false and the BJP MLAs were being targeted to reduce the opposition numbers in House. "We protest against this decision. If our members are made mistakes, we are ready to apologize, but no coercive actions," the senior BJP leader said.

But, Jadhav said that the BJP MLAs abused and tried to manhandle him when he was present in the speaker's chamber. "I have been a member and even minister for several years, but never witnessed such unfortunate incident. The opposition and treasury benches do make allegations and counter-allegations. Sometimes, these arguments are heated, but later everyone walks out peacefully." he said. "No one brings personal grudge outside the House. But for the first time, the BJP MLAs abused and manhandled me."

I have been a member and even minister for years, but never witnessed such unfortunate incident. These arguments are heated, but later everyone walk out peacefully

Bhaskar Jadhav, speaker-in-chair

Later, the suspended MLAs met the Governor BS Koshyari and requested him to seek a report from the government over this episode.

'System responsible for Stan Swamy's demise'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

CONDEMNING the judiciary for denying bail to Stan Swamy, activists said it was a dark day for Indian democracy.

Swamy had repeatedly highlighted the lack of medical facilities in Navi Mumbai's Taoloja jail where he was lodged.

"The system is responsible for Swamy's death. I strongly condemn the delay in legal procedures. Swamy will always be remembered for his work for Adivasis. Dissent cannot be suppressed. We will continue to champion human rights," said Jharkhand-based activist Elina Horo.

All India Progressive Women's Association secretary Kavita Krishnan blamed the government and the jail conditions. "It is the judiciary as a whole, and most of all the judges who denied bail, who deserve the most condemnation. Swamy appealed to them over and over, saying he could not walk, could not eat on his own, had to be spoon fed by fellow prisoners, wanted to go home to Ranchi to spend his last days among his own people... It is a judicial farce that eventually Swamy died even as yet another bail hearing was underway."

The Peoples Union for Democratic Rights expressed outrage and termed Swamy's death as a 'custodial death'. "The central government and the NIA have driven political prisoner Swamy to death. Arresting an elderly activist suffering from multiple ailments in relation to a false and malicious political case, and then letting him die in custody by opposing desperate requests for release, is nothing short of custodial murder," said Radhika Chitkara from PUDR.

Senior advocate Karuna Nandy tweeted, "Stan Swamy has died. In custody, suffering cruel and inhumane treatment, at the hands of the State. The State owes his loved ones, and all citizens accountability. Of the individuals who made the decisions that killed him, and damages."

'Swamy was the voice of oppressed for decades'

MUKESH RANJAN AND SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Ranchi/Mumbai

ACTIVISTS and people close to Swamy, who worked tirelessly for the rights of tribals and other underprivileged people in Jharkhand for more than three decades, termed his death as "institutional murder". "This is an institutional murder. He was arrested on fake charges and murdered. Despite the fact that no charges were proved against him, he was kept in jail for several months," said Aloka Kujoor, who was associated with Swamy for over 20 years.

The Jesuit priest was the oldest among the 16 accused persons arrested in the Elgar-Parishad case and possibly the oldest in India to be charged under the UAPA.

"For decades he was a voice of the oppressed in Jharkhand. We hold the NIA and the central government wholly responsible and strongly condemn their role in Stan's death, which has once again exposed the fascist face of the BJP government at the Centre," said a statement issued by Jharkhand Janadhikar Mahasabha (JJM), a network of several people's organisations and activists.

Jharkhand Chief Minister Hemant Soren and a host of political leaders and activists expressed shock and anguish at Swamy's death and lashed out at the central government. "I had strongly opposed his arrest and incarceration. The Union Government should be answerable for absolute apathy and non-provision of timely medical services, leading to his death," tweeted Soren.

Swamy and other activists arrested in the Elgar Parshad case, including 82-year-old activist Varavara Rao, have repeatedly complained of inadequate health facilities in jail.

Swamy, a native of Tiruchirapalli in Tamil Nadu, was born in 1937 and was best known for his work with tribal people and the fight for their rights in Jharkhand. He collaborated with people's movements working against unjust displacements, human rights violations and illegal land acquisitions. He was also instrumental in filing PILs against tribal, SC and other marginalised youths being implicated in UAPA and criminal cases.

Punjab fight: Captain to meet Sonia

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

PUNJAB CM Amarinder Singh is expected to meet Congress chief Sonia Gandhi on Tuesday in the wake of the ongoing infighting in the state unit.

The meeting comes after Navjot Singh Sidhu, who is opposed to Amarinder, met Congress leaders Rahul and Priyanka Gandhi last week.

On June 23, party's Punjab affairs in-charge Harish Rawat had said that Sonia would resolve all issues related to the state unit by early July and a united party would fight the next Assembly elections.

Sonia is expected to apprise Amarinder of an agreeable formula whereby Sidhu is accommodated at a higher post either in Punjab government or the organisation.

Last month, the Punjab CM met the central panel under Mallikarjun Kharge and was given an 18-point agenda with the deadline on issues related to sacrilege cases, liquor mafia and sand mining. He was denied any meeting with the Gandhis during that trip that led to a speculation that the party will not let Sidhu go with rumours of him hobnobbing with AAP in Punjab.

Sidhu has been targeting Singh over his non-induction in the Punjab Cabinet. His recent comments that Punjab is ruled by two families — hinting at Amarinder and the Badals — has not gone down well with the party high command. Sidhu has been eyeing the post of Punjab Congress chief while Singh is against it.

The Punjab CM, in his meeting with the panel, had made it clear that giving in to Sidhu's demands would hurt the party's electoral fortunes.

Will follow father's ideology, says Chirag

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @ Patna

AMID a tussle with his uncle Pashupati Kumar Paras, LJP leader Chirag Paswan kicked off his state-wide 'Ashiward Yatra' on Monday from Hajipur, vowing to reach every corner of Bihar.

Chirag reached Patna with thousands of supporters who were least bothered about social distancing. He said the yatra aimed to seek the blessings of the people to continue with 'Bihar 1st Bihari 1st' motto.

It was the first visit of Chirag after five LJP MPs led by Paras rebelled against his leadership. "My father's birthday falls on July 5, so, we are taking out this yatra from Hajipur because it was his political 'karmaboomi.' My father called Hajipur 'maa' as he represented it eight times in Parliament," he said.

Lashing out at Nitish Kumar, Chirag said the leadership coup within the party was engineered by the Bihar chief minister out of political vendetta. "I will now work in line with the political ideology of my father who advocated social equality and wanted to make Bihar prosperous," he asserted.

The yatra will pass through all districts of Bihar and seek support against corruption, injustice, unemployment and poverty inflicted upon the people by Nitish in the last 15 years.

'Statute book still has Section 66A on it'

"DON'T you think this is amazing and shocking? What is going on is terrible," a bench headed by Justice R F Nariman told Attorney General K K Venugopal, and asked him to file a counter-affidavit.

Venugopal informed the bench that the statute book still has Section 66A on it. "If your lordships see the IT Act book, there is only a small asterisk and a footnote that says 'deleted by order of Supreme Court'. No one reads the footnote," Venugopal said. He suggested that next to the section, it be mentioned, 'Struck down by the Supreme Court' so that the police are not confused.

GUNMEN KIDNAP 140 SCHOOL KIDS IN NIGERIA, 25 ESCAPE

Close to 1,000 pupils have been abducted since December

KADUNA, NIGERIA

GUNMEN have kidnapped 140 students from a boarding school in northwestern Nigeria, a school official said on Monday, the latest in a wave of mass abductions targetting schoolchildren and students.

Heavily-armed criminal gangs often attack villages to loot, steal cattle and abduct for ransom in northwest and central Nigeria, but since the start of the year they have increasingly targeted schools and colleges.

The attackers scaled a fence to break into the Bethel Baptist High School in Kaduna state in the early hours of Monday, taking away most of the 165 pupils boarding there overnight.

"The kidnappers took away 140 students, only 25 students escaped. We still have no idea where the students were taken," Emmanuel Paul, a teacher at the school told AFP.

Kaduna state police spokesman Mohammed Jalige confirmed the early Monday morning attack, but he could not give details on the number of pupils taken. "Tactical police teams went after the kidnappers," he said. "We are still on the rescue mission."

Around 1,000 students and pupils have been abducted in different Nigerian states since December last year. Most have been released after negotiations with local officials, although some are still being held.

Bethel Baptist High School is a co-education college established by Baptist church in 1991 at Maramara village in Chikun district outside the state capital Kaduna.

Monday's attack was the fourth mass school kidnap in Kaduna state since December. Kaduna state governor Nasir Ahmad El-Rufai has been one of the most vocal local leaders insisting he will refuse to pay ransom money.

The latest abduction came just hours after gunmen also snatched eight medical employees from a Kaduna health centre, according to police.

President Muhammadu Buhari, a former general first elected in 2015, has promised to end the scourge of kidnapping and criminal gangs, but the mass abductions are only one challenge facing his government. AFP

Tunisia: Over 60 feared drowned in three days

TUNIS

MORE than 60 migrants of sub-Saharan origin have been lost at sea off Tunisia since Saturday, after two Europe-bound vessels sank, local authorities and the Red Crescent have said.

Tunisia and neighbouring Libya are key departure points for migrants who attempt the dangerous crossing from the North African coast to Europe, particularly Italy.

So far this year more than 880 migrants have died trying to reach Europe from North Africa, according to the International Organization for Migration. The Tunisian coastguard retrieved the bodies of 21 migrants after their boat was shipwrecked on Sunday off the port city of Sfax, authorities said on Monday.

"Twenty-one bodies of migrants were recovered after their boat was shipwrecked on July 4, and 50 were rescued" off Sfax, said National Guard spokesman Houcem Eddine Jebabli.

He said the migrants, all from sub-Saharan Africa, had been trying to reach Europe. On Saturday, the Tunisian Red Crescent had reported that 43 migrants were missing when a boat carrying more than 120 sunk off the southeastern coast in waters near Zarzis. Tunisia's defence ministry said 84 were rescued from that stricken vessel, which the Red Crescent said had set off from Libya's coast. AFP

Embezzlement: Interpol issues 'red notice' against Zuma's allies

JOHANNESBURG

SOUTH African prosecutors on Monday announced a key step in their bid to extradite Indian-born brothers who were allegedly at the centre of a massive web of corruption.

The three Gupta brothers — Ajay, Atul and Rajesh — are at the centre of a long-running probe into the embezzlement of state assets under former president Jacob Zuma. In a statement, the prosecution authority's chief investigator, Hermione Cronje, said Interpol had issued a "red notice" against two of the brothers, Atul and Rajesh. Red notices are a global alert enabling law enforcers to arrest a person sought for prosecution or serving a sentence and detain them pending extradition. AFP

HACKERS DEMAND $70MN AFTER RANSOMWARE ATTACK ON U.S. CO

PARIS

HACKERS were on Monday demanding $70 million in bitcoin in exchange for data stolen during an attack on a US IT company that has shuttered hundreds of Swedish supermarkets.

Researchers believe more than 1,000 companies could have been affected by the attack on Miami-based firm Kaseya, which provides IT services to some 40,000 businesses around the world.

The FBI warned Sunday that the scale of the "ransomware" attack — a form of digital hostage-taking where hackers encrypt victims' data and then demand money for restored access — is so large that it may be "unable to respond to each victim individually".

Sweden's Coop supermarket chain was among the most high-profile victims, with "a majority" of their 800 stores still closed three days after the hack paralysed its cash registers, spokesman Kevin Bell told AFP.

People walk past a shuttered Coop supermarket store in Stockholm. Most of its supermarkets were still closed on Tuesday, three days after the cyberattack on the Miami-based firm Kaseya, which provides IT services to the chain | AFP

Coop is not a direct customer of Kaseya's, but its IT subcontractor Visma Esscom was hit by the attack.

Bell stressed that the situation was looking "positive compared to a few days ago", but the few hundred stores that have reopened were relying on alternative payment solutions, such as customers paying using their smartphones. Experts believe the attack was probably carried out by REvil, a Russian-speaking hacking group known as a prolific perpetrator of ransomware attacks.

A post on Happy Blog, a site on the dark web previously associated with the group, claimed responsibility for the attack and said it had infected "more than a million systems".

Kaseya describes itself as a leading provider of IT and security management services to small and medium-sized businesses. AFP

Q1 retail loan growth likely to see slide show

HDFC Bank disbursement contracts 30%; Yes Bank faces 35% decline in June Q-o-Q

SESA SEN @New Delhi

EARLY updates for the June quarter from two private sector lenders — HDFC Bank and Yes Bank — have given credence to the RBI's monetary policy committee members' recent remark that "the biggest toll of the second wave is in terms of a demand shock". On Friday, India's second largest private lender HDFC Bank said it has seen 30.24% contraction in retail disbursement, while retail disbursement for Yes Bank saw a de-growth of 34.86% in June over March 2021. The dent is much deeper for Yes Bank as it saw a degrowth in overall loan book even compared to the low base of last year which was hit hard by a stricter lockdown.

When the first wave of the pandemic subsided, the economy recovered quickly, and much of it, due to pent-up demand and higher discretionary consumption. In fact, demand jumped so sharply that India registered GDP growth after just two quarters of contraction - an impressive feat for a country that had been under lockdown for months. However, the second wave ravaged family budgets, with many forced to divert their money towards rising healthcare costs. Besides, higher inflation among all categories, skyrocketing retail fuel prices coupled with weak sentiments and lower income resulted in slackening consumption that overshadows the base effect. The impact was visible on retail loan growth.

In a regulatory filing, HDFC Bank said growth in its aggregate advances came in at ₹11.47 lakh crore at the end of June 2021 quarter, a growth of nearly 14.4%, led by growth in retail loans. The bank's aggregate advances rose 1.3% from ₹11.32 lakh crore as on March 31, 2021. Among loan categories, retail loans grew by around 9% over the year-ago period, but were lower by around 1% as compared to March 31, 2021.

Retail disbursements during the quarter stood at ₹43,600 crore, lower than ₹62,500 crore disbursed during the previous quarter primarily due to the adverse impact of the second wave. This resulted in the outstanding retail loan book to contract 1% on a sequential basis. For Yes Bank, however, even this optical improvement didn't come as a relief. The private lender reported 0.4% year-on-year contraction of its overall loan book, while the loan book saw a de-growth of 1.8% in a seasonally weak June quarter. Yes Bank disbursed ₹5,099 crore worth of retail loans in the June quarter against ₹7,828 crore in the previous quarter.

Govt sets up panel to check digital monopolies

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE Union commerce ministry on Monday announced the constitution of a nine-member advisory committee to curb the digital monopolies in the country. The department for promotion of industry and internal trade (DPIIT) in a notification said that it has initiated a digital project on open network for digital commerce (ONDC) and the task has been assigned to the quality council of India (QCI).

The ONDC is expected to digitise the entire value chain, standardise operations, promote inclusion of suppliers, drive efficiencies in logistics and enhance the value for consumers. "ONDC aims at promoting open networks developed on open source methodology, using open specifications and open network protocols independent of any specific platform," as per the order.

The advisory committee will be headed by RS Sharma, CEO of National Health Authority, and will have Nandan Nilekani, co-founder and non-executive Chairman, Infosys; Adil Zainulbhai, QCI chief; Anjali Bansal, founder of Avaana Capital; Arvind Gupta, co-founder of Digital India Foundation; Dilip Asbe, head of National Payments Corporation of India; Suresh Sethi, head of National Securities Depository; Praveen Khandelwal, chief of the Confederation of All India Traders; and Kumar Rajagopalan, CEO of the Retailers Association of India, as its advisory members.

The announcement comes at a time when the Union commerce ministry has proposed fresh amendments to the e-commerce rules, Consumer Protection Act 2020, in a bid to prevent market dominance by market leaders, preferential treatment of a few sellers and deep discounting.

Zomato gets approval from SEBI for its $1.2-bn IPO; eyes valuation of $8 bn

BISMAH MALIK @ Bengaluru

THE Securities and Exchange Board of India(SEBI) has given a formal approval to food delivery firm Zomato for its ₹7,875-crore ($1.1-billion) Initial Public Offering, clearing decks for one of the most awaited public issues in Indian markets this year.

This comprises of a fresh issue of shares worth ₹7,500 crore and ₹375 crore through an offer for sale by existing investor InfoEdge. Zomato , according to sources, is eyeing the IPO at a $ 8.7 billion valuation, a significant jump from its $5.4 billion valuation when it raised $250 million last month led by Tiger Global, Fidelty, Kora Management.

The SEBI has issued some observations to the Zomato in response to the draft red herring prospectus (DRHP) filed by the Gurgaon-based firm on April 28. Under the current guidelines, an IPO/ rights issue needs to be opened within 12 months from the date of issuance of SEBI observations. Zomato will have to now approach the Registrar of Companies for final approval. On Sunday, Zomato's biggest investor InfoEdge informed the stock exchanges that it is reducing the size of its offer for sale in the upcoming IPO to ₹375 crore from the earlier proposed ₹750 crore .

Meanwhile, the National Restaurant Association of India (NRAI) on Monday approached the Competition Commission of India(CCI) alleging anti-competitive practices by food aggregators like Zomato and Swiggy, which has impacted the businesses of restaurants. The NRAI said that despite raising concerns with food delivery firms, no steps have been taken by the latter. The association alleged that both Zomato and Swiggy have indulged in bundling of services, data masking, charging high commission, deep discounting, selective listing of hotels, in violation of competition laws.

Zomato had said in its DRHP that Covid had significantly impacted the company revenues during the first quarter of FY2, and its dining-out business continued to be affected with the imposition or restrictions.

Overdue FDs to earn less as RBI tweaks norms

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has tweaked the norms for interest on the amount left unclaimed with the bank after a fixed deposit (FD), also called a term deposit, matures. As per the new rule, if a term deposit matures and proceeds are unpaid, the unclaimed amount will earn lesser of the interest between the prevailing interest rate on the FD and the saving account rate. Until now, unclaimed deposits attracted the rate of interest applicable to savings deposits.

'It has been decided that if a term deposit (TD) matures and proceeds are unpaid, the amount left unclaimed with the bank shall attract a rate of interest as applicable to savings account or the contracted rate of interest on the matured TD, whichever is lower," says RBI in a circular.

The central banks made this amendment to section 9 (b) of the Master Direction - Reserve Bank of India (Interest Rate on Deposits) Directions, 2016, that governs the way interest is paid by banks on these FDs. Typically saving bank account rates are much lower than FD rates. Given that we are currently in one of the lowest interest rate cycles seen in the last 20 years, depositors may end up earning further lower interests. A fixed deposit is a deposit that is kept in banks for a fixed period of time at a fixed interest. It also includes deposits such as recurring, annuity, cumulative, reinvested deposits, and cash certificates.

FDs can be done in the post office as well. FD investments have the advantage of availing loan, but the facility is not available on tax-saving FDs. What is an overdue FD deposit? It is one where the investor upon maturity of the deposit does not claim the amount nor does he/she renew the FD; it remains idle with the bank.

Deposits are classified as unclaimed by RBI if the customer doesn't make any transaction in the account for 10 years or more. The new rules are applicable for deposits on all commercial banks, small finance banks, local area banks and co-operative banks. The development comes at a time when unclaimed deposits with banks have been growing every year.

CNG suppliers likely to hike retail price to maintain profit margin, say analysts

JONATHAN ANANDA @Chennai

MANY people using petrol and diesel-powered vehicles have begun to seriously consider shifting to a cleaner, and cheaper, alternative such as compressed natural gas (CNG), but analysts now expect a price hike for domestic natural gas during the next scheduled price revision this October. This is set to put pressure on the profit margins of CNG suppliers such as Indraprastha Gas and Mahanagar Gas, and may lead to a rise in retail prices too.

A report from Motilal Oswal released on Monday says that CNG firms are set to face their "steepest uphill battle ever" due to the expected price hike. The problem for gas manufacturers is that the past few quarters have presented especially favourable conditions which are now likely to change.

Starting April 2019, the price of domestic gas (the key raw material for CNG) fell from $4.1 per metric million British thermal unit (mmBtu) to just $1.8 mmBtu currently. However, CNG companies raised retail CNG prices (in New Delhi) to Rs 43.4 per kg from Rs 37.9 per kg during the same period.

₹43.4/KG
Current price in Delhi

₹37.9/KG
Price same period year ago

This resulted in lucrative price equations and profit margins, with earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortisation (EBITDA) per standard cubic meter (scm) of CNG rising during the period. IGL's EBITDA/scm rose by 44 per cent to Rs8/scm while MGL saw it doubling to Rs 12/scm during the same period.

However, oil and gas producer ONGC's chairman and managing director Subhash Kumar told analysts during a call last week that domestic natural gas prices are likely to "increase by 50-60% for the October 2021-March 2022 period". Brokerages also expect an increase, with Emkay Global expecting a 58% rise to $2.8 per mmBtu and Motilal Oswal to $2.86.

Analysts expect this spike to reflect in both CNG pricing and margins for IGL and MGL. "For every $1 per mmBtu increase in domestic gas price, IGL and MGL need to take an ₹4 per kg hike in CNG, excluding taxes," Motilal Oswal warned, "Combined with the persistent demand of OMCs to raise commissions, both IGL and MAHGL appear staring at the steepest uphill battle so far."

When contacted, IGL said that it does not comment on future pricing.

Rise in household debt amid second Covid wave a concern, says SBI report

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE beginning of the second wave resulted in sharp increase in household debts in the pandemic-stricken financial year 2020-21, which is indicating rise in debt stress and is a matter of concern, a report by State Bank of India (SBI) economists said on Monday.

According to the report, household debt as percentage of gross domestic product jumped from 32.5% in FY20 to 37.3% in FY21, on account of the adverse financial impact caused by Covid-19 pandemic.

The report added that the debt has been calculated after taking into account retail loans, crop loans and business loans from financial institutions like commercial banks, credit societies, non-banking financial companies (NBFCs) and household finance corporations (HFCs).

The beginning of the second wave resulted in significant deposit outflows from banking system in alternate fortnights.

However, the pace of these deposit outflows has moderated now.

"Between March and December 2020, 599 districts saw an inflow of ₹11,19,776 crore, while 113 districts saw an outflow of ₹1,06,798 crore. This decline in bank deposits and the increase in health expenditure may result in further increase in household debt to GDP in FY22," the SBI report said. The report said due to the increase in health expenditure, there is a need to support wage income.

"If we proxy employee expenses as wage income, as percentage of corporate gross value add for around 4,000 listed companies, it has come down to 30.6% in FY21 from 34.1% in FY20, even as their net income as percentage of corporate gross value add has significantly grown from 13.4% in FY20 to 23.7% in FY21," the report added.

Tata Motors to hike prices of all models to pass on higher input cost to buyers

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

TATA Motors' cars and SUVs are all set to get more expensive as the automaker has decided to go for another price hike this financial year. In May 2021, Tata Motors passenger vehicles saw their prices increased by up to ₹36,400 while in January 2021, the same had gone up by ₹26,000.

"The steep climb in overall input costs, especially due to continuing rise in costs of essential raw material including steel and precious metals, necessitates a transfer of at least some part of this increase to end customers," Tata Motors said on Monday.

The hike will most likely be applicable on all the six products from the brand - Tiago, Tigor, Altroz, Nexon, Harrier and the recently launched Safari. A formal announcement about the quantum of price increase is likely to be made soon.

Tata Motors is not the only automaker that has decided to increase prices of their product second time this FY and third time this calendar year 2021. On Sunday, Honda Cars India said it intends to take a similar step from August, while the market leader Maruti Suzuki had last month announced that it would implement a price hike during the July-September quarter.

Rajesh Goel, Senior VP and Director, Marketing and Sales, Honda Cars India, said, "Our endeavour is to keep the cost of acquisition lower, so we are currently deliberating on how much of the additional cost we can absorb and how much will be inevitable to be passed on to our customers. The revised prices will be implemented from next month."

The recent price hikes are a big setback for consumers who are already facing the burden of high fuel prices.

India Pesticides listed on BSE at 22% premium

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

AGROCHEMICAL firm India Pesticides (IPL) shares listed today at ₹360 - a 21.62% premium over its issue price of ₹296 - on the BSE. However, the stock fell 4.68 to ₹343.15 at the session's closing, primarily due to profit booking.

Analysts are optimistic about the stock to fetch good long-term returns for investors due to its strong fundamentals and overall growth of the pesticide industry. IPL's revenue & profit grew at a CAGR (Compound Annual Growth Rate) of around 38% and 75% over FY19-FY21, respectively, while global agrochemicals market is expected to grow at 7% CAGR to $86 billion by 2024.

"We like IPL given its presence in fast growing agrochemical space, diversified product portfolio and robust financials. Expanding product portfolio, growing customer base and increasing wallet share of existing customers can help IPL maintain its growth momentum. It is reasonably valued at 30.8x FY21 P/E (price earning ratio), vis-à-vis peers, while it enjoys higher RoE (return on equity) of 36%," said Sneha Poddar, AVP, Research, Broking & Distribution, Motilal Oswal Financial Services.

The ₹800-crore IPO (initial public offering) of India Pesticides was subscribed 29 times during June 23-25.

Anderson takes 1,000th first-class wicket

England paceman James Anderson claimed his 1,000th first-class wicket during a career-best spell of 7-19 for Lancashire against Kent in the County Championship on Monday. Most of his first-class wickets have come in Test matches — he has 617 wickets in 162 Tests, just two behind retired Indian leg-spinner Anil Kumble, who is third on the all-time bowling list.

As far as tasty semifinals go, Tuesday night's clash between Italy and Spain is right up there, brimming with vast potential. Here's a look at the clash

Final before the final

BACKGROUND

An Italy renaissance under Roberto Mancini was in the works even before the tournament and they have continued that momentum in the first five matches. They have scored goals for fun, attacked from right, left and through the centre whilst defending as a unit. Spain grew into the tournament as a team after a few hiccups. While their pastmasters have all gone, the new generation is a bit more direct. However, question marks, it's fair to say, do remain about the side's durability.

KEY BATTLES

MORATA V CHIELLINI/BONUCCI

Italy's defensive duo are a delightful throwback to a time when defenders celebrated last-ditch tackles with a fist bump. They lorded over Romelu Lukaku in the previous round and they will look to do the same thing against their Juventus teammate. He's deceptively flaky and is an okay operator with the ball at his feet. And with Spain, he will get service.

INSIGNE V AZPILICUETA

The Azzurri's latest avatar is all intricate attacking and 5d passing and movement. However, they do like an out-ball to Insigne who will look to cut in from the left wing like he did to devastating effect against Belgium. The Chelsea right-back isn't quick anymore but will have to be on his bike to stop this sort of move from developing.

FERRAN V EMERSON

The loss of Leonardo Spinazzola will be huge and Spain could see that area of the park as a weak-link. Emerson Palmieri is expected to play instead and he will not have the same attacking presence. Instead, his big job will be to stop Ferran Torres from linking up with the forward line. Ferran has the pace to cause problems to the Italian defence.

04 This is the fourth consecutive time that the two sides will be facing each other in the knockouts of the Euros. Spain have won twice and Italy once.

32 Italy haven't lost in their last 32 matches.

Sports ministry seeks MEA help to get vaccination for athletes training abroad

ANMOL GURUNG @Chennai

CONSIDERING the more severe quarantine rules for those travelling from India to Tokyo, the Indian Olympic-bound boxers are expected to leave directly from Italy, the place where they are currently refining their skills. In fact, when the team departed for Italy, the initial plan was to get much-needed training in Assisi till July 8 and return to India before leaving for Tokyo. However, the change in plan has meant some of the boxers — Manish Kaushik, Satish Kumar, Pooja Rani and Simranjit Kaur — and support staff are unable to get their vaccination due to strict vaccination policy in Italy.

Alert about the vaccination hurdles, the sports ministry has sought the assistance of the Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) to help the boxers and other athletes like javelin thrower Neeraj Chopra, wrestlers Ravi Dahiya and Deepak Punia. "I'm aware that they are trying to help through the Indian embassy in Italy. But I don't know the details," Raffaele Bergamasco, India women's high performance coach, said.

Neeraj, according to a Sports Authority of India release, is currently based in Uppasala (Sweden) and is unable to get the vaccine as Covishield (AstraZeneca) is available only for those above the age of 65. Dahiya and Punia, who got the first dose of Covishield in India, are unable to take the second shot because of the unavailability of the vaccine in Russia. One of the wrestlers is hopeful they will be able to get the second dose by July 15. The duo, along with Bajrang Punia — who are vaccinated — are expected to leave for Tokyo on July 26 or 27.

"The Boxing Federation of India wrote to the government to let the boxers continue training in Italy till it leaves for Tokyo. It thus became important that the MEA provides assistance to ensure that the 15 members are fully vaccinated," the SAI said in a release.

Even though vaccination is not mandatory at the upcoming Olympics, India is taking no chances and has decided to vaccinate those who'll be part of the Games on a priority basis.

The Indian boxers have been training in Assisi for a little over two weeks now. Even MC Mary Kom, who had initially planned to give the trip a miss and train in India itself, recently joined the group bearing in mind the quarantine complications that she could face if she travelled from India. The pugilists, are getting the opportunity to spar with Olympic-bound pugilists from rival countries. The boxers are expected to reach Tokyo on July 17 or 18.

Shooters Rahi Sarnobat, Saurabh Chaudhary and Deepak Kumar are also expected to get their second doses of vaccination in Croatia soon. The trio, along with other shooters/support staff, is currently undergoing training Zagreb.

26-MEMBER ATHLETICS TEAM FOR OLYMPICS

THE Athletics Federation of India released the names of the 26-member Indian contingent who will compete in the Olympic Games in Tokyo. The athletics events will begin from July 31 and continue till August 9. Seventeen male and nine female athletes are part of the team with the likes of M Sreeshankar (long jump) getting ready for his maiden Olympics while discus thrower Seema Punia is set to participate in her fourth Olympics. The squad: Men: Avinash Sable (3000m Steeplechase); MP Jabir (400m Hurdles); M Sreeshankar (Long Jump); Tajinderpal Singh Toor (Shot Put); Neeraj Chopra and Shivpal Singh (Javelin Throw); KT Irfan, Sandeep Kumar and Rahul Rohilla (20km Walk) and Gurpreet Singh (50km Walk); 4x400m Relay: Amoj Jacob, Arokia Rajiv, Muhammed Anas, Naganathan Pandi, Noah Nirmal Tom; 4x400m Mixed Relay: Sarthak Bhambri, Alex Antony. Women: Dutee Chand (100m and 200m); Kamalpreet Kaur and Seema Antil-Punia (Discus Throw) and Annu Rani (Javelin Throw); Bhawna Jat and Priyanka Goswami (20km Walk) and (Mixed 4x400m Relay): Revathi Veeramani, Subha Venkatesan & Dhanalakshmi Sekhar.

Mary, Manpreet to be India's flagbearers

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Chennai

MC MARY Kom (boxing) and Manpreet Singh (hockey) will be India's flagbearers at the opening ceremony of the upcoming Tokyo Olympics. This will be the first time that countries will have more than one flagbearer at the OC. This is thanks to the International Olympic Committee's (IOC) push towards gender equality.

For Mary, who won bronze at London Olympics, to carry the flag is perhaps one of the biggest honours in her life and a humbling experience too. "Not everybody get a chance to be flag bearer so for me this is another great moment in my career," the 38-year-old pugilist, who would be participating in the 51kg at the Olympics told this daily. "I am absolutely delighted. I also consider this as some kind of recognition for whatever I could achieve in my career. I must thank the Indian Olympic Association, the federation and the sports ministry. It will motivate me to perform better in Tokyo. I want the flag to fly higher and higher."

While making the decision public, the IOA, also said the contingent would have a total of 126 athletes (including alternate), plus 75 officials. Wrestler Bajrang Punia will be the flagbearer for the closing ceremony. "It's a huge honour to be named the flagbearer for the opening ceremony alongside the incredible Mary Kom," Manpreet said. "This is a big moment in my career, and it is also a huge moment for hockey."

Ancient carving upends theories on Neanderthals

Researchers believe humans brought art to Neanderthals, but they had own traditions

ANTHROPOLOGY

The design may be simple, but a chevron pattern etched onto a deer bone more than 50,000 years ago suggests that Neanderthals had their own artistic tradition before modern humans arrived on the scene, researchers said Monday.

The engraving, discovered at a German cave where Neanderthals lived tens of thousands of years ago, has no obvious utility according to researchers who say the artifact sheds new light on the ill-fated species' capacity for creativity.

The vast majority of Stone-Age artworks discovered in Europe are attributed to Homo sapiens and experts have long suggested that Neanderthals, among our closest relatives, only began creating symbolic objects after mixing with them.

But using radiocarbon dating, archaeologists determined the recently-unearthed artifact to be at least 51,000 years old – pre-dating the arrival of Homo sapiens in central Europe by some 10,000 years, according to the research published in the Nature Ecology and Evolution.

"The cultural influence of H. sapiens as the single explanatory factor for abstract cultural expressions in Neanderthals can no longer be sustained," the study says.

Dirk Leder, one of the authors and a researcher at the Lower Saxony Office for Heritage Department of Archaeology, told AFP that the bone clearly represents a means of expression. "We are very convinced that communicates an idea, a story, something meaningful to a group," he said.

'No practical use'

The carved fossil was found at a well-known archaeological site called Einhornhoehle -- or "Unicorn Cave".

Located in the mountains of central Germany, treasure hunters searched there as early as the Middle Ages for what they believed to be unicorn fossils. It was in the 1980s that scientists first found evidence of an Ice Age Neanderthal settlement at Einhornhoehle and the new bone is from a dig under a collapsed entrance to the cave where artifacts were discovered in 2017.

The bone, from the foot of a rare extinct giant deer, is about half the size of a deck of playing cards (about 5.5 centimetres long, 4 centimetres wide) and three centimetres thick.

Six diagonal intersecting lines intentionally carved into it form a kind of chevron design that covers much of one surface. "The item is of no practical use," notes the study. "Instead, the geometric pattern itself constitutes the central element."

The study reports that a series of experiments attempting to re-create the object using cow bones shows that it was probably boiled once or twice before it was sculpted with flint. The deer bone stands out as "one of the most complex cultural expressions in Neanderthals known so far".

Delta strain may bypass vax: Expert

HEALTH

JERUSALEM: Rising coronavirus cases in Israel, where most residents are inoculated with the Pfizer/BioNTech vaccine, offer "a preliminary signal" the vaccine may be less effective in preventing mild illness from the Delta variant, a top expert said on Monday.

But Ran Balicer, chairman of Israel's national expert panel on Covid-19, stressed it was "too early to precisely assess vaccine effectiveness against the variant" first identified in India in April that is surging across the globe.

That is partly due to the overall low number of cases among fully vaccinated Israelis, and because exposure to the virus and the likelihood of being tested are not evenly distributed across the population, further complicating efforts to reach conclusions about the data.

Balicer, also the chief innovation officer at Clalit, Israel's largest health maintenance organisation (HMO), said the Delta variant's emergence as the "dominant strain" in the country has led to a "massive shift in the transmission dynamic".

Israel's vaccine rollout that began in December was one of the world's fastest, making the Jewish state a closely-watched case study on whether mass inoculation offers a path out of the pandemic.

Vaccinations had brought transmission down to about five local new cases per day, but that figure has risen to around 300 in recent days, with the Delta variant raging.

About half of the daily cases are among children, and half are among mostly vaccinated adults. "To some extent that could be expected since 85% of Israeli adults are vaccinated," Balicer said.

Some of us could live to 130: Study

DEMOGRAPHY

IT is almost certain that the current maximum reported age at death of 122 will be broken by 2100, as per a new study in Demographic Research.

There is also a probability of 89% that a person will live up to the age of 126 and a 13% probability to reach 130.

Even though nearly half a million people worldwide have lived past the age of 100 till date, the number of 'supercentenarians,' people who live for 110 years or longer are far fewer, explained Michael Pearce and Adrian Raftery from the University of Washington.

Biologists and researchers are divided on whether the human lifespan can increase beyond a certain point. Many argue that despite better treatment for diseases like cancer and Parkinson's, the cell deterioration of the human body would limit its lifespan. However, the counter argument is that researches have recently found promising pathways to stop biological ageing.

Another area that the research throws light on is the flattening of the mortality rate after a certain age – that a person who is 110 years old and another who is 114 has the same probability of living for one more year. The study also shows that the survival probabilities are equivalent beyond the age of 110 regardless of sex, nationality, or genetic background.

The research is important as data on longevity is crucial for designing governmental and economic policies, and individual planning.

FACT OF THE MATTER

Sail freely, Ever Given

TRADE

The megatanker retained by Egypt since it blocked the Suez Canal in March will be released Wednesday, after the authority that manages the vital waterway said a deal was reached with its Japanese owners. The MV Ever Given -- a behemoth with deadweight tonnage of 199,000 – got stuck diagonally across the canal during a sandstorm on March 23, blocking the trade artery for six days before salvage teams could dislodge it. Egypt retained the vessel seeking compensation from Japanese firm Shoei Kisen Kaisha for lost canal revenues and the cost of salvaging it and for damage to the shipping lane that links Asia and Europe. The Suez Canal Authority said a ceremony would be held on Wednesday to mark the signing of a deal.

Colonialism in Africa

HISTORY

A sculpture of African baptist preacher John Chilembwe, who led an uprising against colonial rule, will look over London's landmark Trafalgar Square for the next two years, the mayor's office said on Monday. Antelope, by Samson Kambalu, restages a 1914 photograph of Chilembwe and European missionary John Chorley as a sculpture. In the sculpture, a larger-than-life Chilembwe is shown wearing a hat, defying a colonial rule that forbade Africans from wearing them in front of white people. The "fourth plinth", which marks one corner of Trafalgar Square, is one of the most coveted art commissions in the world, and is often the source of controversy.

Erosion caused freak sinkhole, says research

ENVIRONMENT

MEXICO CITY: A huge sinkhole that appeared in a farm in central Mexico in late May was caused by erosion of limestone bedrock and not excessive water pumping, a study said.

Many residents in the Puebla state believed the sinkhole was the result of excessive ground water extraction by factories or a water bottling plant in the area. They had shut down a water bottling plant in the area earlier because they thought it was hurting water tables.

But Mexico's National Water Commission said the cause of the crater was "a natural process of limestone being dissolved," which can cause the soil on top to collapse. It said water table levels were stable and the aquifer was not over-exploited. "There is no evidence that the cause of the sinkhole was water extraction," the commission said.

Puebla Gov. Miguel Barbosa said in June if water extraction proved to be the culprit, he would cancel pumping rights.

The bottom of the sinkhole is filled with water that appears to have strong currents, and experts say it is relatively warm, suggesting it comes from deep underground.

Unlikely engineers revive drylands better than humans could

ENVIRONMENT

SEVEN years ago, to restore a dried-out floodplain in Sacramento, California, ecologists were busy preparing the land by building fake beaver-dams and waiting for the nature's engineers to arrive on scene.

Three years later, at the Doty Ravine Preserve, a floodplain altered by decades of agricultural use, was restored at a fraction of cost by these engineers – the beavers.

"It went from dry grassland to totally revegetated, trees popping up, willows, wetland plants of all types, different meandering stream channels across about 60 acres of floodplain," Lynnette Batt, the conservation director of the Placer Land Trust, told the Sacramento Bee. The trust owns and maintains the Doty Ravine Preserve.

Engineers at work

Beavers are prolific builders that use twigs, mud and stones to dam up flowing streams and create ponds on the banks. They then build small islands inside the ponds where they live and store their food. These ponds are deep enough to deter big land animals like wolves and bears.

This capability of the nocturnal animal to alter the natural environment, second only to humans, converts the landscape into an expansive wetland that can retain water for longer periods.

What human engineers would have achieved by using heavy equipment at a cost of $1 million to $2 million was done by beavers at under $60,000.

The beaver wetlands act like giant sponges that collect water and slowly release moisture during the summer. As a result, they are able to convert a landscape at wildfire risk to lush greenery, around which a whole new ecosystem thrives, making beavers a keystone species.

Emily Fairfax, Assistant Professor of Environmental Science and Resource Management at California State University Channel Islands, told the Sacramento Bee that she found instances like the 2000 Manter fire in California and the 2018 Badger Creek fire in Wyoming, where beaver wetlands could stall the march of wildfires. These landscapes, besides aiding firefighting efforts can also act as safe spots for various animals where they could take refuge and let the wildfire pass.

Threats to the beaver

In the 1600s, from about 400 million, their population was reduced by the demand for beaver pelts in Europe. Their numbers plummeted until 1900s when the interest in these products died down. Today, there are roughly 15 to 25 million beavers in North America, said Fairfax.

A WHIFF OF NOSTALGIA

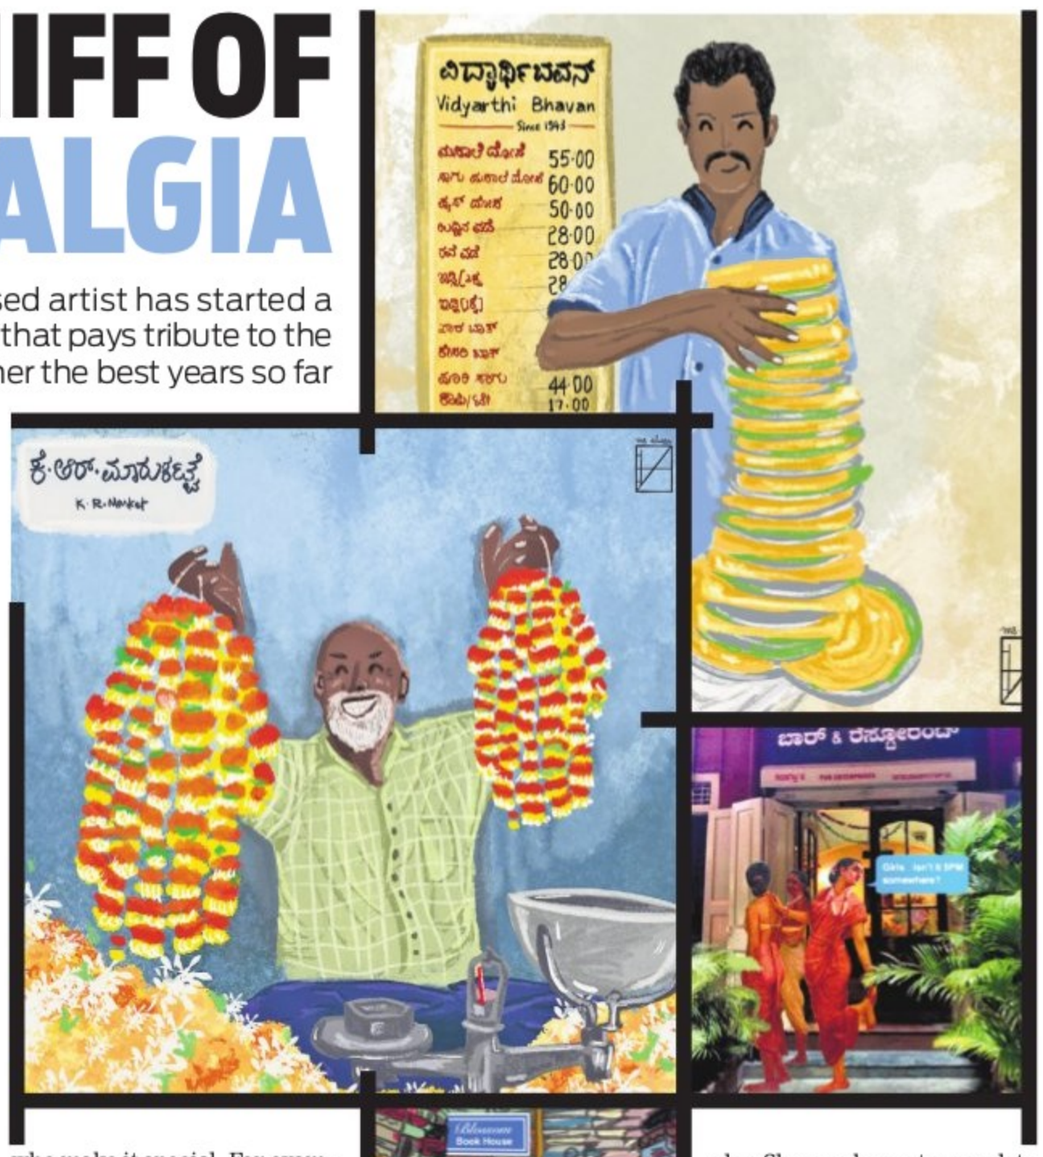
A Bengaluru-based artist has started a new series of artworks that pays tribute to the city that has given her the best years so far

SIMRAN AHUJA

GOING back to the past may not be possible but capturing a slice of it definitely is. That's what Sangeetha Alwar's Illustrated Bangalore series aims to do with digital artworks. Launched on July 1, the series is Alwar's tribute to the city that has given her the best years so far as she attempts to document digital memories of the times before the pandemic. So far, Alwar has posted three artworks: A wide-grinned flower seller at KR Market, a waiter with the infamous stack of dosaes at Vidyarthi Bhavan (which the eatery also acknowledged and shared on their own social media profiles) and the owner of Blossom Book House.

"It's not a series about nostalgia but one about change. I wanted to physicalise this sense of missing and capture how things have changed in the city. I don't know if things will ever go back to the way they were or if I'll get to see full faces again," says Alwar, who besides being a freelance artiste is also a professor of English at Indian Institute of Journalism and New Media.

Currently in Mysuru with her family, the 27-year-old is yearning to get back to the city again. In a way, this series is helping her reimagine herself in Bengaluru. The ongoing project will have at least 10-15 artworks in total, each coming out every three days or so. Next in line are Christ (Deemed to be University), where Alwar completed her Masters; Lalbagh Botanical Garden, Church Street, and Namma Metro, to name a few. "But it isn't just going to be the place alone. This series is also about the people who make it special. For example, the one on the Indian Coffee House will feature the server with a distinguished moustache, Bookworm will feature the owner, and so on," she says.



What sparked this idea was a photo Alwar saw of the flower seller at KR Market, clicked by her friend Vikas Badiger. The market holds a special place in her heart - it was the spot she went to on a day she played hooky from college. "Most of my travel back then was limited to going to and fro from college and I felt like I wasn't getting a feel of the city. So, I boarded a bus and went on a solo adventure to KR Market. It wasn't a life-changing experience but it was moving and the memory has been vivid ever since," says Alwar.

Having grown up in different South Indian cities, she has now been living in Bengaluru for over three years. The city isn't just home anymore but a muse as well. An older series Alwar did took characters from Raja Ravi Varma's paintings and placed them in contemporary Bengaluru hangouts like Koshy's and a busy junction with vehicles. She now hopes to complete this series and put out the remaining three pieces post the completion of her Illustrated Bangalore artworks. "I started illustrating after moving to Bengaluru. This city has given me a lot, so it's only natural it is a part of my works," she says.

Malls in the city which reopened after two months, wore a deserted look on day one

SANATH PRASAD

ON Monday, several popular shopping malls in the city reopened after having been closed for over two months. But footfall was low and the usually bustling spaces wore a deserted look. Stores within malls were sparsely crowded and businesses saw a slow start. Whether in central Bengaluru where Garuda Mall wore a gloomy look or in South Bengaluru where Royal Meenakshi Mall saw only a few people, the general mood was lukewarm.

According to a store manager at Royal Meenakshi Mall, they saw a footfall of over 2,000 between 10 am and 5pm. But the stores painted a different picture with staff struggling to push sales. "A lot of collections that landed before the lockdown remained unsold, making it difficult for us to bring in new collections. Since morning we have made a sale of just about ₹6,000," a manager of a popular fashion brand told CE.

With plans to start a vaccination drive within the mall, UB Venkatesh, managing director of Royal Meenakshi Mall, hopes that this will also mean brisk business for stores. "We are starting a vaccination drive inside the mall which will be in place for the next two to three months," he says, adding that the rent for stores was waived off during the lockdown period.

One upon a time, trial rooms were bustling, with long queues being a common sight. However, that could be a thing of the past as many customers are likely to be wary of trying on outfits before a purchase. "What we've noticed today is that people are refusing trials despite us taking safety precautions. A garment that has been tried on will not be given to anyone else for 24 hours," says Manjula K, adding that festival season in August is the only hope to draw customers. A beauty and wellness store in another mall has stopped trial products for customers, keeping the health protocols in mind. "We have stopped giving samples to customers. This will indirectly hit the business," says Nandini Balraj, store manager. Gadget stores, on the other hand, saw larger numbers with many checking out the latest phones available. "We have made a sale of ₹3 lakh since morning," says a salesperson.

In recent years, malls have become synonymous with multiplexes. Some like movie buff Sirish K were missing that experience. "Theatres and popcorn are a hallmark of mall culture. The last four months were very stressful. Coming here is a sort of breather although I miss watching movies on the big screen," he says.

Amping it up with ruffles

The flowing frills are popular among youngsters who feel that this new style statement manages to take an outfit to another level, in both casual and party wear

Designs by Sonaakshi Raaj

SHREYA VERONICA

FASHION trends come and go, but ruffles, since the 19th century, have been a constant. These flowing frills somehow manage to take an outfit to another level, in both casual and party wear. Considering that they make a bold statement, most prefer pastels for ruffles. But there are risk-takers who'd love to flaunt this in flashy reds, pinks and even greens. If stitched right and accessorised elegantly, the wearer can make heads turn and eyes pop.

Design by Sonaakshi Raaj

Varun Chakkilam, known for showcasing his bridal collection at the Lakme Fashion Week, takes us through the history of ruffles. "The origin of ruffles began in the 19th century when mercenary soldiers wore a lot of layers of fabric. This look is said to have become popular as it symbolised a soldier's return from war. Dramatic and theatrical, ruffles have bridged costume design and high fashion, making them one of the most historically rich trends of the summer. During the Elizabethan era, ruffles were ruffs, an accessory that was stiffened with starch and wire, giving the wearer the effect of a straighter posture," he says.

Design by Varun Chakkilam

Dipti Mrinalini, a sustainable fashion designer and entrepreneur, says, ruffles cut through the wire fabric and are not straight, which adds more stretch to it and gives a lot of bounce to the outfit. "Ruffles look great on the hem of crop tops, skirts, dupattas and sarees. They are a delicate detail that one can add to a garment," she says, adding that ruffles were more popular on the international run away last year as compared to 2021. "This year has been more about straight silhouettes and pajamas. Nevertheless, I've seen ruffles mostly used in chiffons, georgettes, nets and silks. Embroidery also tends to complement it," she says.

If you are planning to wear a ruffle-hemmed outfit, pair it with delicate jewellery. The style looks great on skirts. "This is a Spanish influence. Pair the skirt with an off-shoulder top or a crisp button-down shirt. It complements the drama of the skirt. A simple tank top with junk or silver jewellery would look stunning," says Mrinalini. Always pair a ruffled outfit with a plain separate, this will draw more attention to the details of the frills.

Fashion designer Sonaakshi Raaj, who has styled Tollywood beauty Tammanha, also helps us understand how one can look classy in a ruffle outfit. "They need something more fitting and structured to go with them. For instance, if you wear a saree which has a ruffle pallu, pair it with a nicely fitted blouse," she says.

GARBHA PINDASANA
(EMBRYO IN THE WOMB POSE)

In Sanskrit, 'garbha' means womb, 'pinda' means embryo and 'asana' means pose. It is an advanced yoga pose requiring flexibility in the knees, hips and ankles. This is especially beneficial for pregnant women and may be practised through the first trimester. It is believed to help prepare the foetus for correct positioning at birth. It also activates the first three chakras: Muladhara, Svadisthana and Manipura. It helps bring spiritual union between one's mind and soul. If it is too difficult or painful to get into full lotus pose, you may start with half lotus pose. This pose provides exercise for both the upper and lower body.

- Come into Padmasana (lotus pose). Bring the right foot above the left thigh, then the left foot on top of the right thigh.
- Slide hands through the gap between the calves and the thighs (close to the knees).
- Your arms are then pushed forward, up to the elbows while the thighs are lifted off the floor; bring palms together or hold the ears, balancing the whole body on the coccyx.
- The eyes may be open or closed.
- Hold for 10-30 seconds or for as long as you are comfortable. Balance your body properly.
- Inhale and exhale properly.

Despite a slowdown, particularly in the hospitality industry, several new restaurants are cropping up in the city with restaurateurs hoping to cash in on 'vengeance outings'

Launching restaurants at this point is a bold move, but we are optimistic that things will start looking up in the latter half of 2021

- Deepti Kat, partner, Secret Story and Bhola & Blonde

VIDYA IYENGAR

COME Friday, and Bengaluru will see the launch of SuzyQ on Queen's Road, the same spot that housed Asian restaurant and bar 1Q1. Once a popular spot which saw packed crowds on weekends in particular, the pandemic in a way changed things. Even as the hospitality sector struggles to stay afloat, some hoteliers in Bengaluru are taking a leap of faith as they open new spaces in the city.

With the emergence of Covid, restaurateur Anirudh Kheny realised that he had to completely pivot from his usual model-- something most hoteliers are working around. The mostly outdoor space (which is 10,000 sqft in total) with close to 50 per cent of it being outdoor seating, is also catering to a different crowd with their new offering. "We just have to work around the pandemic and the new normal which is here to stay for at least the next 3-5 years. The situation is extremely worrying--there are overheads, staff payments, licences, while cash flow has been slow in the last one and a half years," says Kheny, adding that restaurateurs are now clinging to hope. "The emergence of new restaurants doesn't exactly mean the hospitality industry is doing well. But we've put our mind and money into it, so we have to see the project through," says Kheny, whose new space represents a sassy, vivacious and playful side of things. In line with that, the menu explores a global cuisine with local influences with a keen focus on traditional coastal delicacies, regional Indian cuisine, continental, succulent grills, and Tapas.

According to chef Anirudh Nopany, partner at Brik Oven, who has opened a new 2,000 sqft outlet in Whitefield, they decided to go ahead with this because it came at a time when things were really picking up in the second half of 2020. "So it made perfect sense to not miss out on this opening, especially since we felt we had the right kind of space-- a lot of open air-- a requirement in these times," says Nopany. The outlet was set to open in May but things got delayed because of the second wave of the pandemic and the subsequent lockdown. "But there's no doubt that it's worrying with so much looming uncertainty. Just around the second lockdown, we lost about 40 per cent of our staff," he adds.

Two new spaces are in the offing for Deepti Kat, who is launching Secret Story, a high-energy bar and Bhola & Blonde, an Indian progressive fusion restaurant and bar."2020 and 2021 so far have seen some extremely tough times when it comes to the F&B sector. It is a bold move, but we are optimistic that things will start looking up towards the latter half of 2021," says the partner at both the restaurants.

With branches of Old Madras Baking Company in Chennai and Hyderabad, owner Sweta Garapati is now working on an outlet in Dollars Colony. "Opening a space in Covid times has been much more challenging than any other. Plans have been getting pushed-- we were supposed to open at the end of May which is likely to now be the end of the month," says Garapati. With people not venturing out of homes, their concept of 'community tables' where visitors get to know one another, is something they're reworking in the new outlet. "Here, we've decided to not have too much seating because that's the order of the day. We're just seeing how it goes and taking a call," she says.

THE other day, a cousin reported that the pet dog population in his apartment block had doubled through the pandemic. The residents had opted to adopt pets through the lockdown. It did not matter to them that their plates were already full with everything being done from home.

That made me think. Being forced to remain indoors, humans have brought work and school/college classes within the four walls wherein diverse interests of family members are constantly clashing. In the friction-riddled living conditions, they are taking along stress and anxiety, anger and frustration, and depression and distraction. And they are brewing it up with the otherwise daily household chores, which are bones of contention over who's going to do what, now that everyone is doing their thing from home. As a rule, each has to pitch in with everything that they were not used to doing in the pre-pandemic era.

Now, that's a heady mix - which is where pets enter to break the routine and bring in some relief from the rut and friction. That probably explains why my cousin's apartment block - as probably elsewhere too - saw a doubling of the pet population, including a two-month-old Beagle in his house.

There is something about pets that we humans readily forgive, and look at their mischief with a high degree of amusement. The same mischief by our own kids could get our goat, but not their mischief.

Many years ago, we had a male Doberman-Labrador cross, who was not just filled with mischief and affection, but could get ferocious too. The presence of two little children at home (my son and nephew) had made him fiercely protective of them. That chemistry, although agreeable to us, did not bode well with our neighbours. The postman, the milkman, the cooks, and the domestic helpers, started giving excuses for not entering the building, the real reason being the presence of this macho quadruped named Leo.

He had once chased a postman all the way down the stairs and out of the gates. The hapless fellow had come to deliver a post. Mr Leo took the opportunity to give chase, suspecting him to be a threat to the kids. He escaped with tattered trousers which could not escape Leo's sharp teeth.

Well, that wasn't all. Those sharp teeth helped him completely devour - yes, devour - my wedding blazer (my favourite) and my wife's prized possession, a book which ironically happened to be My Family and Other Animals by British naturalist Gerald Durrell. It was gifted to her by her elder sister. That she was inconsolable is an understatement.

A friend has a tom cat that jumps in through an open window - meant exclusively for him - with a half-dead bandicoot or a rat on several occasions when guests are invited for a meal. "It's his way of conveying to us that he too is getting something in for dinner," my friend explained once, after the shrieks and screams had subsided. Imagine one of the guests walking in with something as disgusting as that to keep up with the custom of carrying something for the hosts while invited for a meal.

Still, we look at these with a certain amusement, something different, which breaks the monotony of daily living. But it's not just about amusement. Studies have shown having a pet at home increases exercise; provides companionship; helps you meet new people while taking them out for walks (cats don't need your company though); reduces anxiety; adds a structure and routine to your day that could come as a relief from the frictions at home; and provides sensory stress relief while stroking your pets affectionately.

Now, I am really missing Leo!

BUILDING A SAFETY NET

LOVEOLOGY
Mahesh Natarajan

ARE you in an intimate relationship where you choose not to tell your partner something really embarrassing that's happening to you, because you don't feel safe?

If you are keeping some things secret from your partner, not because you want to protect them or that it is somebody else's secret, but because you are embarrassed or ashamed of it, and you think your partner will likely only make you feel more shame or embarrassment, you are quite likely to not share at all even if it is a matter of importance. This could be a matter of health - perhaps a wart or something in an unfortunate area, or an investment that went belly up, or an indiscretion that threatens to blow up in social media. Things like this ought to very much be shared with each other as they might affect everyone in the relationship, but the fear of being shamed can be a serious dampener. One might try really hard to cover up and sort out things without the partner ever getting to know, and then, when they don't get resolved and become too big to hide, worse things are likely to happen, but for partners fearful of being shamed, that seems a worthwhile risk.

It also is about matters from the past, like a silly photograph when you were goofing around with buddies and the camera caught you in a really unflattering way, or a love letter you wrote to a person you were crushing on when you were barely a teen that you discovered. Ideally, these would be matters of amusement and joy with each other, something that is private to the relationship and something one might get teased about in a good-humoured manner, but if it becomes a way for one partner to exert some power over the other through scorn, derision or even outing those little secrets in parties and what not to get a laugh at your expense, you would certainly think twice about sharing anything.

Relationships are supposed to be safe spaces where you can be fully yourself, warts and all. They are supposed to be spaces where you experience affection for even what you would otherwise feel shame, and really, that's what helps one heal from old wounds and become more fully themselves. We need that space where we can look at our foolishness, our mistakes, our accidents and incidents. Doing that with someone who treats it with love and affection helps us feel okay about ourselves.

On the flip side, if you notice your partner keeping secrets from you, then instead of attacking them for not being transparent or being unfaithful, perhaps take a step back and ask yourself if you have been safe for them? Have you treated their little confessions as precious gifts of trust that you can hold safely, or have you laughed at and ridiculed them?

Intimacy is fragile. Trust is easily lost. Yet, all it takes to enjoy true intimacy is for us to try and be safe for each other.

STUDYING WITH MUSICAL NOTES

TUNING IN
Bindu & Ambi Subramaniam

HAVE you ever wondered why some people can't study with music and why some can't study without it? We've had many parents come up to me and ask why their children insist on studying with music when (the parents feel) it is so obviously distracting and not conducive to learning.

The truth here is pretty nuanced and depends largely on the kind of music you are listening to. If you are listening to your favourite songs, those might actually distract you, because you'll follow along with the music. It gets you into "active" listening mode, where your focus is on the music itself. What is helpful while studying (or any other task that requires focus) is "passive listening" when the music creates a sonic backdrop for you to focus on whatever else you are doing. The type of music that has shown to help best for studying is instrumental music. Why is this? Because there are no lyrics to distract the brain.

An interesting caveat here is that if you are a musician or a music student, it may be best to avoid the style of music you learn or play when you're trying to study, because your brain might be more trained to focus on the music than the task at hand. So, if you're a Carnatic mridangam player, maybe you shouldn't listen to a complex rhythmic piece while cramming for your Math exam.

It's also good to remember that though there are studies to show how the brain relates to music, each of us is unique. My own brother made his way through med school playing ghazals through late night study sessions and he's doing great.

Volume also plays a role - try to ensure that it's at a volume that helps drown out external noise (like the pressure cooker at home!) and helps you focus, but isn't so loud that you can't think.

If you haven't used music while studying before, try it out!

'Always wanted to blend human drama and sci-fi like Spielberg'

...says filmmaker Chris McKay, while discussing his sci-fi spectacle, The Tomorrow War, which released last week on Amazon Prime Video

RAM VENKAT SRIKAR

Chris McKay attributes the works of Steven Spielberg and James Cameron as major filmmaking influences, and you can see this in his latest film, The Tomorrow War. The Chris Pratt star vehicle is imbued with all the characteristics widely associated with Hollywood blockbusters—enormous action sequences, overwhelming visual spectacle, and an emotional family drama binding them all together.

The filmmaker talks about directing The Tomorrow War and the films that moulded his taste, both as a cinephile and a filmmaker.

The Tomorrow War is your first live-action film. How different or similar was it to helm a live-action project as opposed to an animated film?

The biggest difference between directing a live-action film and an animated film is that the actors don't talk back in an animated film. For a massive movie like this, where science fiction, action set pieces, and aliens all intertwine with one another, there are many aspects that crossover from animation to live-action—like the visual effects, pre-visualization phase, and the animatrics involved. I prefer spending time on animatrics to visualise and plan shots in advance, because irrespective of the budget and schedule, you are always under the gun.

Moreover, while working with actors on voice roles for animated films, I encourage them to move around the sound booth, use the space to catch the rhythm of performance, and access their imagination. Likewise, on the sets of a film like The Tomorrow War—where the actors have to react to a computer-generated alien—it's similar in many ways. Of course, the actors are required to run with guns in dusty, smoke-filled sets, as opposed to recording their lines in a sound studio but, as a filmmaker, you use the same tools to build the environment for the actors to perform.

How challenging was it to assemble a big-budget film like this in the age of isolation?

We were fortunate to have wrapped up the filming about a month before the lockdown. We had just returned to Los Angeles from Iceland when the pandemic hit us, and, consequently, we had to reassess how we would approach post-production. Soon, we decided to send everyone home with their equipment and started working on the edit virtually. There's a program called Evercast, which enabled us to monitor progress in real-time, watch what people were working on in the Avid suite, and talk to people to ensure a collaborative experience. It eased the editing process by loads and facilitated the back and forth of edits between the team.

There were still tasks—like the visual effects—which mandated physical presence, but we tried to stay safe by adhering to social distance norms and the mask policy. It was, indeed, challenging, but also doubled-up as a kind of bonding exercise as all of us were traversing through this difficult phase together. Each day, we had to come up with a novel way to solve a problem, and I think it made us all, a team.

Chris McKay

The Tomorrow War blends two fascinating elements—time-travel and aliens. Any personal favourites from these genres?

Several! I'm a huge fan of horror and science fiction, with a particular inclination towards time-travel films. Among time-travel films, Happy Accidents (2000) and Primer (2004) are great. There's also a peculiar film called Triangle (2009), which, you may say, is about time travel in a weird way. And then there are the obvious fan favourites—James Cameron's Terminator and Terminator 2: Judgment Day remain two of my favourites.

Moving on to alien stuff, I love Ridley Scott's Alien, and its sequel, Aliens, directed by James Cameron, John McTiernan's Predator, and even Species, for that matter. Being films I grew up with, they still give me a kick (laughs). And science fiction films like Blade Runner and Star Wars were special too. I have also been a massive fan of John Carpenter and Steven Spielberg. The Thing was an equally important film in childhood. With Spielberg, be it ET: The Extra-Terrestrial or Raiders of the Lost Ark, the way he manages to interweave human drama and family stuff is something I have always wanted to do as a filmmaker. It's one of the reasons why I'm making movies.

Have these personal favourites influenced The Tomorrow War to an extent?

Absolutely. The mood of a film like Alien, the sense of threat and tension which Ridley Scott and his team were able to create by pitting these simple humans against a monstrous adversary in space, fascinated me. My film too is about ordinary people in extraordinary circumstances. Moreover, the visual style of those movies is enchanting. We shot The Tomorrow War with the anamorphic lens in a 2.39:1 aspect ratio as I was keen on achieving the look and feel of the films that I grew up savouring. In that sense, a fairly modern Children of Men was equally influential for the kind of feelings the film's dystopian backdrop evoked. Likewise, the colour palette of James Cameron's films, especially Terminator and Aliens, with a predominant bright blue scheme was also a major influence, and going by those, we employed colours that popped off the screen during the time travel sequences.

You have promised an uncompromising DC Comic adaptation of Night Wing and are also set to direct a Jonny Quest movie. Where are these two, highly anticipated movies standing?

We just delivered the script of Jonny Quest to Warner Bros. I'm looking forward to getting the film going. I think it will be a fun film about a family, and the mixed, modern family idea adds to the complexity. Coming to Night Wing, hopefully, when Warner Bros sees The Tomorrow War, they will want to make it right away. I really hope so.
